Light Voting Looms at Polls Tomorrow

STATE VOTE TO BE LESS THAN TWO MILLION

Election Officials Say 26,000 To Mark Ballots in City and County.

POLLS OPEN AT 6:30

District Congressional Race Seen Closest as Drive For Votes Ends.

Last-minute appeals to voters to exercise their balloting privilege tomorrow closed the state and county campaigns today about as quietly as they opened nearly eight weeks ago.

This election, first in World war II, has been effectively "blacked out" by war news which has not been too cheerful recently and no one expects more than 1,750,000 of Ohio's nearly 4,000,000 eligible voters to go to the polls Tuesday when state, district and county officials will be chosen.

Polls will open at 6:30 a. m. tomorrow and close at 6:30 p. m. Since the ballots this time are not difficult to tabulate and the vote is expected to be light, election officials believe results in the races will be known early Tuesday night.

Election officials urged office, factory, and store workers to vote early to avoid congestion at the

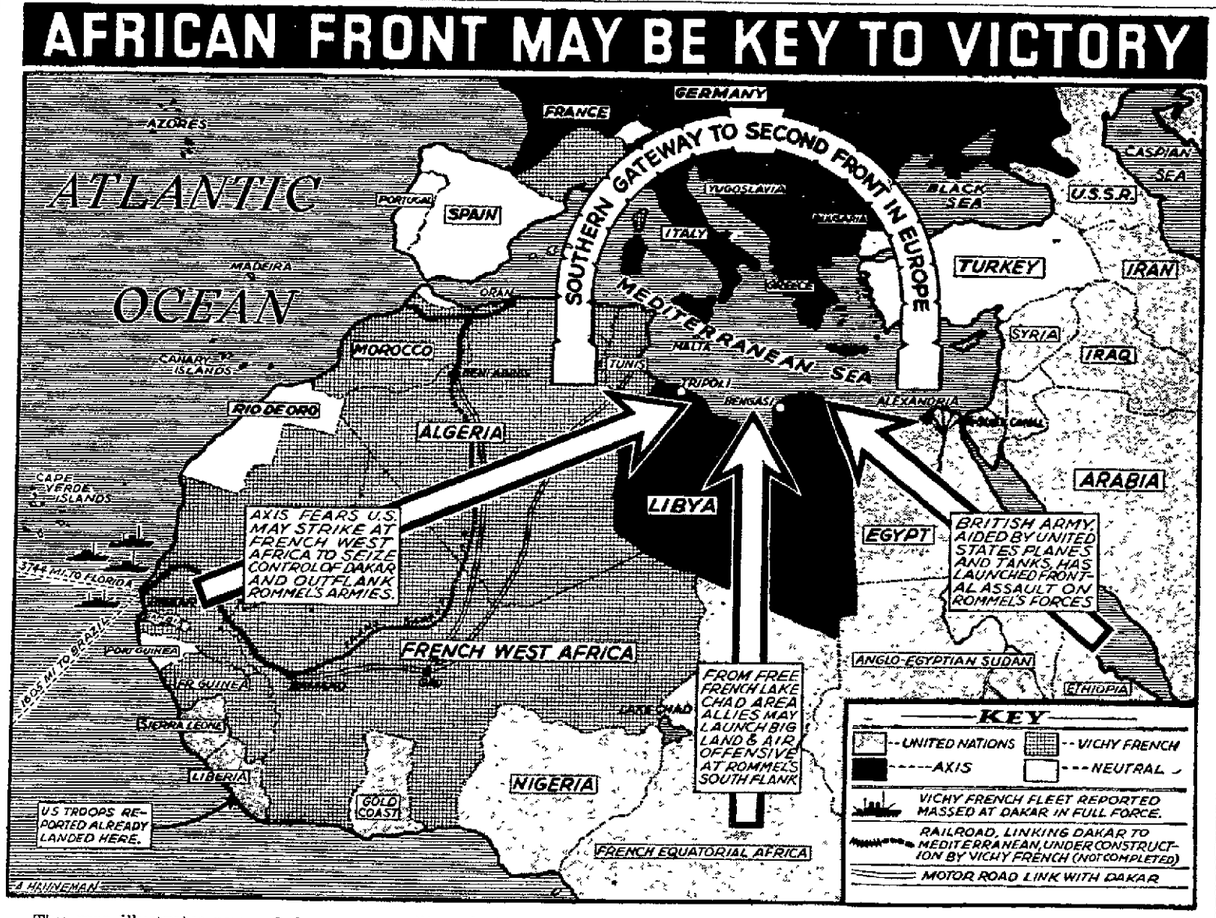
The News-Journal will stage its customary election party Tuesday night at Fourth and Walnut streets, providing latest returns on the races in Richland county, 17th district, Ohio and other states where the interest is high. A speedy system of tabulating will provide bulletins which will be posted in The News-Journal windows while a special corps of telephone operators will be on hand to give returns for those who are unable to get downtown

AFRICAN FRONT MAY BE KEY TO VICTORY



This map illustrates some of the various military factors that may result in the opening of a second front, not in France or Norway, but in southern Europe. Principal stake in the great battle now raging in north Africa is control of the 1,000-mile shoreline on the vital Mediterranean from Tripoli to Alexandria —the gateway to southern Europe.

COUNTY GETS GAS RATIONING APPLICATIONS

They're Available To Drivers at Auto Club; Registration Period Postponed.

NOV. 12-14 NEW DATES

Rationing Officials Work on Plan For Handling Motor Fuel Applications.

Application blanks for basic mileage ration books arrived today at the Richland County Automobile club, 68 North Mulberry street, where motorists may obtain them, close on the heels of an OPA announcement that registration for rationing has been postponed until Nov. 12, 13 and 14.

Postponement from the Nov 9-11 setup has been necessary because of a delay in delivery of the required printed forms, OPA officials said.

Application blanks covering passenger autos and motorcycles are available in Mansfield at the auto club and in Richland county at the same sources from which owners obtained their license plates.

This arrangement has been worked out, OPA officials say, to expedite the checking of an applicant's blank as to the vehicle license number, the state of registration, its year model, make and body type.

After motorists have filled out their blanks they then submit them at registration places during the Nov 12-14 period. Registration will be made at the city's elementary schools. Details of this part of the procedure are now being worked out.

Especial attention is called to the fact that the application must be signed by the owner al-

Navy Lists New Sea Successes Against Enemy

Three More Ships Hit, One A Converted Carrier; Heavy Enemy Toll Exacted From Air To Win Control of Water Around Guadalcanal.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—The sinking of seven enemy ships and the damaging of three others, including a converted aircraft carrier set afire, by American submarines during recent operations in the Pacific were announced today by the navy.

A communique reported that American submarines operating in the western and south Pacific had sunk one large passenger-cargo ship, two large tankers, two medium-sized and two small cargo ships, damaged and set afire one converted carrier, and damaged one destroyer, and a medium-sized tanker.

These operations brought the total of enemy ships reported sunk or damaged by submarines in the Pacific since the outbreak of war to 133, of which 86 were sunk, 20 probably sunk and 27 damaged.

The text of the communique, number 178.

"Far East.

"1. U. S. submarines have reported the following results of operations against the enemy in Far Eastern waters:

"(a) Two large tankers sunk.

"(b) One large passenger cargo ship sunk.

"(c) Two medium-sized cargo ships sunk.

"(d) Two small cargo ships sunk.

"(e) One converted carrier damaged and set on fire.

"(f) One destroyer damaged.

"(g) One medium-sized tanker damaged.

"These actions have not been announced in any previous navy department communique."

The last previous navy report on submarine action against the Japanese in the Pacific, communique number 151 on Oct. 14, reported the sinking of five Japanese ships, including a heavy cruiser, plus one probably sunk and two damaged.

TURKEY VOICES FEAR OF ATTACK

British Score New Gains In Desert; Germans Push on Caucasus Oil Fields.

(By Associated Press)

Concurrently with the growth of the German threat to breach the Caucasus mountain wall where Russia defends not only her own oil riches but also a vital approach to the Middle East, Turkey today had voiced her fear of attack.

The strong Allied showing in Africa—marked today by a report from the Egyptian battlefront that a chunk of the Axis army had been cut off along the Mediterranean — no doubt added to Turkey's inclination to speak her mind.

Unofficial reports said that several thousand men of the Axis African corps, mostly Germans, were caught when Australian troops made a bayonet charge across the coastal sand dunes, closing the trap.

In the eventuality of a German break-through in the Caucasus or a sharp reversal of the British army's offensive in Egypt Turkey would have Axis armies not only at her European front door but

SURVIVORS LAND

Torpedo Victims Reach Port In Britain, Madeira.

FUNCHAL, Madeira Island—(AP)—Eighty-four survivors of British freighters torpedoed in the Atlantic have been landed here, it was announced today.

The survivors said the ships were part of a convoy attacked by Axis submarines about 140 miles off the Canary islands. Five enemy submarines managed to get into the midst of the convoy and suddenly began torpedoing in all directions, they said.

LONDON—(AP)—All survivors of a steamship torpedoed in the Atlantic arrived recently in Britain, their original destination, it was learned today. Only one passenger and three crew members were lost.

LAUDS FIGHTING OF AMERICANS

Sydney Paper Says They've Checked Danger to Island.

SYDNEY—(UP)—The Sydney Sun today complimented American Marines for their "splendid fighting" on Guadalcanal island and said that only "for their heroism Australia would be in imminent danger of assault."

"We musn't forget the great part played by Australian and American fliers under MacArthur," the newspaper added. "They flew the ocean daily to batter the enemy fleet."

"The way ahead looks dark and dangerous, but we have every reason to look forward with confidence to final victory."

ARREST 10 ON SPEED COUNTS

State Patrolmen, Police Cite Drivers; Most Violations on U. S. Route 42.

Ten motorists were arrested on speeding charges over the weekend along with five other autoists cited by state highway patrolmen to appear in Mansfield municipal and Ashland police courts on charges of intoxication, unsafe operation and driving without a muffler.

Robert Lee Adams, Cleveland, cited on the charge of speeding on U S Route 42 Sunday afternoon was to be given a hearing today in municipal court before Judge G E. Kalbfleisch.

Cases of Miles R. Aber, Ashland, and John A. Stuart, Shiloh, arrested on charges of speeding and operating a car without a muffler, respectively, were heard this morning before Judge Harold E. Andrews of the Ashland police court.

Posting $16.30 bonds and signing appearance waivers in municipal court after state highway patrolmen arrested them for speeding on U S. Route 42 were Glenn R. Smith, Akron; Jack H. Fox, Cheviot; James T. Conwell, Buffalo, N. Y.; John E. Golob, Dayton; Howard W. McQuaid Cleve-

'War School' Leaves 1,000 With Home Defense Lessons

More than 1,000 civilian defense enrollees of Mansfield and vicinity witnessed yesterday afternoon's demonstration of incendiary and explosive bombs in Mansfield Senior high school stadium which closed a two-day war protection school conducted by Chemical Warfare Service officers assigned to the faculty of Purdue university.

On Saturday night there were 373 registered for the control center exercises in the school auditorium, the army officers praising the equipment set-up furnished by the Mansfield Telephone company under the direction of Clarence Lisle, director of Mansfield's control center and air raid signal alarm system.

Scores more attended one or more of the sessions but failed to register, Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, defense coordinator said, in reporting that plant protection forces from all local industries were given opportunity to attend the classes and to confer privately with the Army faculty.

Mrs H T. Pollett, 116½ Penn avenue, member of the Nurses' Aid organization, probably is the first Mansfield woman to undergo gas mask drill and to extinguish an incendiary bomb Mrs Pollett was in a group of 25 who received mask instruction before

RECEIVES CROSS

Wife Gets Decoration Awarded Husband Posthumously.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Mrs. Helen L. Walter of Maple Heights, O., today received the distinguished service cross awarded posthumously to her husband, Lieut. Donald A Walter, for "extraordinary heroism" with the United States army air forces over occupied Europe.

The award, second highest possible for an American to receive from his government, was made by Col. Albert C. Foulk, commanding officer, at nearby Lockbourne air base.

Walter, the citation said, displayed "extraordinary heroism in action over occupied territory in continental Europe on Aug 21, 1942" while co-piloting a Flying Fortress on a high level bombing mission.

USHER KILLED IN 3-WAY CRASH

19 WAACS Injured Near Des Moines; Five In Hospital.

DES MOINES —(INS)— Funeral services were planned today for Mary Ashman, 17-year-old Des Moines theater usher who was killed in an accident yesterday involving two army trucks, an automobile and a taxicab.

Nineteen WAACS were injured in the crash when the car in which the Ashman girl was riding sideswiped the two army trucks.

Five of the WAACS were hospitalized at Fort Des Moines army post, while the remainder suffered minor cuts and bruises. The WAACS were returning to the post after a Halloween dance at the Des Moines Y. W. C. A.

CITY'S GOING TO BE 'DECORATED'

All Down Town, Residential Districts To Receive War Chest Message.

Signaling the city-wide offensive by an army of 500 "Commandos" a week from today, Mansfield this week will be literally plastered with placards, posters, pamphlets and other literature voicing the appeal "For home and country—give an hour's pay each month."

The thousands of items of campaign literature form part of the "ammunition" which the Commandos have for their drive toward a $140,377 objective in the Community War Chest.

By the end of the week Mansfielders won't be able to turn their heads in any direction without getting an eye-full reminder that to raise a fund more than double of what it customarily is, a contribution of more or equal to "an hour's pay each month" is necessary. That has been set up as the contribution yard-stick by the

CHASE BLAZE

Fire Companies Pursue Burning Railroad Car.

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Three fire companies raced five miles after a fire today and caught it—a flaming box car on a moving Erie freight train—at East 105th street and Quincy avenue.

Passersby had noted the fire and notified the train crew, apparently unaware of the blaze.

MORE LEAVE

2 Bands Accompany Draftees Off For Training Today.

The first group of 45 draftees from Board 3 marched to the Erie station shortly after noon today behind bands of Mansfield Senior high school and Local 711. Another group of 45 men from Board 3 will leave tomorrow.

Today's contingent were given an official "send-off," complete with gifts of patriotic organizations, by the Richland civic victory committee at the court house before they started their march to the station. Their train was scheduled to leave at 12:30 p. m.

Other groups from Mansfield boards 1 and 2 left on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week.

Let's Prove Hitler Is Wrong About America

EDITORIAL

TOMORROW is more than an "election day"—it is a day on which America's capacity for self-government will be tested.

Selection of county, district and state officials is incidental to the one big issue of whether the RIGHT TO VOTE is prized sufficiently to cause at least a large majority of men and women to lay aside personal affairs for a few minutes to allow themselves time to vote.

Hitler and his totalitarian partners boast that the state must rule the people, that the ideal of self-government, upon which this nation is founded, is doomed to failure—and he is seeking world domination of his "new order," which would bring enslavement to all free peoples.

Democracy, which means operation of government in accordance with the views of a majority, as expressed at elections, is based on the theory that all citizens above the age of 21 will gladly share the responsibility of choosing officials and indicating preference on public issues presented for their decision.

It has sometimes seemed, when only small minorities voted at primaries or general elections, that Hitler might be right—that democracy was doomed to failure because a majority of citizens were more interested in their own personal affairs and convenience than they were in exercising their "right of franchise."

"Not interested," "Haven't time," "Don't make much difference which one's elected," "Bad weather," "The politicians run things anyhow"—and dozens of other explanations, excuses or alibis for NOT voting!

Thousands of Mansfield and Richland county young men are already fighting—or getting ready to fight—to preserve the freedom, the rights and the privileges which have become their proud heritage as Americans. Some suffered through the harrowing days at Bataan—and some have died. More will go—and more and more—until the war has been won.

But there are also tasks for those who remain at home—tasks delegated by men in the armed forces who are not here to do them.

One of these tasks is to refute arrogant Adolf Hitler's sneer that "democracy is a failure"—democracy fails only to the extent that its beneficiaries fail to recognize that enjoyment of privileges presupposes acceptance of responsibilities.

Every eligible voter in Mansfield and Richland county should be sufficiently interested in one or more of the county, district or state contests to be decided at this election to go to the polls tomorrow and cast a vote for the man which each considers best fitted for the office to which he aspires—but if such interest is lacking, and regardless of past voting lapses, it is still urged—IN BEHALF OF THE INSTITUTION OF DEMOCRACY ITSELF—that YOU be counted among those who vote tomorrow . . . so that the number of votes cast in this city and county may mount impressively toward the total of registered voters.

Then Mansfield and Richland county people will have shown that DEMOCRACY IS NOT A FAILURE HERE!

ASHLAND—Offices in the Ashland county courthouse will be closed at noon election day.

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis
Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.
Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.
No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

MISS LILLIAN GIBSON BECOMES BRIDE OF JOHN ROWE IN ASHLAND

ASHLAND—The marriage of Miss Lillian Gibson, daughter of Mrs. C. J. Harrison, and John Thomas Rowe, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Rowe, has been announced by the bride's mother. The wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Friday night with Rev. J. H. Armstrong of Ashland officiating. The couple was unattended.

Following the ceremony a reception was held for the guests which included only the immediate members of the family.

Mrs. Rowe, a graduate of Ashland high school in the class of 1940, is employed in the offices of the Faultless Rubber company. Rowe, a graduate of Perrysville high school in the class of 1938, is employed by the Trojan Powder company at Sandusky. Following a short wedding trip the couple will reside in Ashland.

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

It is now First Lieutenant Earl Richert of the U. S. Army air force, somewhere in England.

A letter received by Glenn Robinson, Hedges school principal, from the former Mansfield school teacher, football official, and ex-Madison High football and basketball star, reports the recent promotion.

The letter, written a month ago and just arrived, says the weather in England at that time was just like Indian summer back home, with very cool nights.

"Have been to London several times and have seen all the sights," Richert writes. "I have never seen a town so full of statues as London. All over the place.

"They play football here, but it is not the same game. Rugby which is similar. Our food is very good, and I don't think I have lost any weight yet. The scales over here weigh you in stones. One stone is equal to 14 pounds."

In a previous letter Richert disclosed he had flown in the famous Dieppe raid of last summer. At least Robinson put two and two together and decided that was what Richert was talking about when he said:

"Well things are back to normal once again. It was very, very hot Wednesday, and rather warm again Thursday. I never in my life sweat so much before. Am glad that much is all over. Hope never to get caught in such a position as I was. There really wasn't much future in it at the time.

"It gives you a very empty feeling to have three people shooting at you at once, each with two 20 m.m. cannon. What a time!!! We are all very lucky to be alive, and that is the whole sweet, short story."

And from Johnny Burns, former manager of Mansfield Athletic Supply sport teams comes the following letter:

Dear Rex: Well here I am in foreign service, and getting a taste of the I never experienced before. I am living in the jungle about 17 miles from civilization. Have already seen jungle animals galore, such as boa constrictors, bushwhackers, sloth panthers, wild monkeys, wild boars and alligators.

I have been made a battery commander and am in complete charge of a whole battery of guns. Also supervise the ration distribution for the whole regiment. Although we have not seen any action, we expect it any time now.

We get very little time off. I see by your column that my old golf partner, Chuck Schlegel, got in a golf round in England. On one of my off days I found a fine course down here, and got in two rounds of a tournament. Posted a 79-76 to get in the running, but about five strokes off the pace.

Not much else to report, except that you realize there's no place like the U. S. after you leave it. Hope we get this mess over with in a hurry. So there's going to be a city league this winter?

Best regards,
Lt. John V. Burns

Buckeyes Slightly Deflated

Meet Pittsburgh In This Week's Feature.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio State's Bucks, slightly deflated after absorbing Saturday's 17-7 setback at Wisconsin (which cost them the state, Big Ten and national leadership) take time out from Western conference chores Saturday to meet Pittsburgh's Panthers here.

Pittsburgh defeated Carnegie Tech 19 to 6 Saturday, but isn't expected to be too tough for the Bucks as they clash in the headliner of a 23-game weekend program involving Ohio squads.

The Buckeye teams meet a dozen foes from outside the state, while five of the contests are in the Ohio conference where Ohio Northern, Denison and John Carroll are tied for the lead, after Otterbein fell from the peak Saturday by losing to Denison 6-0.

John Carroll is idle this week, but Ohio Northern tackles last-place Mount Union, and Denison takes on Wooster's Scots, who have won four of six—all in the league.

Wilberforce, leader in the state-wide standings, meets Kentucky State college at Frankfort, Ky. The Greene county Negro university has won five straight and may be headed for the national Negro collegiate laurels.

The week-end schedule:

Friday: Capital vs. Miami Radio unit at Hamilton (night); Muskingum at Washington and Jefferson;

Saturday: Findlay at Otterbein, Mount Union at Ohio Northern, Baldwin Wallace at Case, Denison at Wooster, Wittenberg at Bowling Green (all Ohio conference contests), Ohio U. at Western Reserve, Toledo at Butler, Marshall at Xavier, Akron at Wayne, Pittsburgh at Ohio State, Miami at Ohio Wesleyan, Oberlin at Allegheny, Wabash at Kenyon, Elmhurst (Ill.) at Heidelberg, Kent State at Hiram, Wilberforce at Kentucky State college, Youngstown at Geneva, Cincinnati at Tennessee, Chattanooga at Dayton, Defiance at Bluffton, and Rio Grande at Marietta.

Has High Game In Girls' Bowling

Marge McClure turned in high game of 146 in the high school girls' bowling league at Colony alleys last Friday.

Reserves got to play nearly half the game for Madison, and were sparked by the fine play of Eccles, a sophomore, who went 50 yards on one run to the Bellville 1-yard line. Eccles recovered one fumble back of the line, tried to run with it, found himself trapped, and tossed a forward pass for a first down.

Ram Seniors Divide Scoring

Madison Closes Its Season Next Friday.

With their final game of the season coming up next Friday night against Mt Gilead Madison high school Rams were given a day off from practice by Coach Al Fendrick today.

Fendrick will spend the rest of the week working on several line-up changes, moving Rinehart to center, Morrison to tackle, and Gross in the backfield.

All of the senior members of the Ram team scored last Saturday in the Madison 45-0 victory at Bellville. Harold Hammer and Billy Wynne each got three touchdowns, Hammer getting the first on a 15-yard run on the second play of the game. Dick Bader got the other touchdown.

Poston took a pass for one extra point, and Seniors Spriesterbach and Rinehart were brought into the backfield for line plunges for extra points.

GALION GRIDDER STILL LEADS EAST

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—(UP)—Sophomore halfback Jim Secrest of Galion, O., scored four touchdowns and ran his season scoring total to 78 points Saturday to remain among the East's top scorer as the University of Rochester blanked Allegheny 41-0.

In his first sloppy field effort, Secrest tallied on runs of 1, 2, 27 and 69 yards. He carried the ball 13 times for a 143-yard gain, and 11 yard average, as Rochester netted a 396 yard total.

In Rochester's six games Secrest has scored 13 touchdowns, an average of 13 points a game.

Badgers Have Title Hopes

Ohio State Fumbles Bring About Defeat.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— While the scarlet and gray flag of Ohio State was flying at half mast today, Wisconsin's aspirations to a Western conference football crown blazed anew as the result of the Badger's smashing 17-7 verdict over the Buckeyes in Saturday's battle.

Wisconsin is now the only undefeated team in the Western Conference as well as the Midwest and anyone who expects to participate in the scramble for the Big Nine bunting this fall will have to trim the Badgers to do it.

Minnesota, the mighty Gophers of old, continued their stepped up pace by trimming Northwestern 19-7 and Iowa shoved Perdue deeper into the ranks of the vanquished with a 13-7 conquest of the Boilermakers.

Michigan walloped Illinois, 28-14, and the Iowa Seahawks rose in angry fury with a 26-point splurge in the final period to subjugate Indiana, 26-6.

The latter games went according to form, but the Buck-Badgers tilt was giving the dope bucket a healthy kick as most of the "guesperts" had predicted an Ohio State victory.

The triumph for Harry Stuhldreher's lads was no fluke. It came as the result of a team playing 60 minutes of heads-up football, giving and taking no quarter.

Elroy Hirsch demonstrated one the greatest running exhibitions ever seen on Camp Randall field, thoroughly delighting an overflow crowd of some 45,000 rabid enthusiasts, largest crowd ever to witness a Wisconsin football game in Madison.

Ohio State played fine football, but it was not on a par with the type of play turned in by the Badgers at least on this particular Saturday afternoon.

Five Ohio State fumbles at crucial stages of apparent touchdown drives was the main factor contributing to the downfall of the Buckeyes, who entered the game as the nation's No. 1 collegiate unit. The statistical edge in total yardage gained during the game slightly favored Ohio, giving evidence that Brown's bombers "went down fighting."

Pat Harder also was a tough customer to handle and it was he who accounted for the 10 winning points on a two yard touchdown plunge and a 25-yard field goal after each scoring play had been set up by Hirsch, the sensational sophomore.

Ohio scored its only touchdown in the last quarter when Paul Sarringhaus climaxed a 96 yard downfield march with a three-yard plunge. Gene Fekete converted to run his Western Conference leading scoring total to 42 points.

Wisconsin's final score was also registered in the final period on a 14-yard pass Hirsch to Dave Schreiner Wisconsin's all-American flanker.

WINS IN WALK

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Walter Fleming, 34-year-old Detroit war worker, is the new National A. A. U. 40-kilometer walking champion. He outstrode a field of 20 contestants, including defending champ John J. Abbate of Cincinnati, over the New Richmond-Cincinnati course, slightly under 25 miles yesterday. His time was three hours, 46 minutes, 48.6 seconds.

Mauriello Outpoints Savold In Heavy Bout

Isbell Passes Score 5 Times

Green Bay Packers Crush Cardinals.

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO —(AP)— The magic wand of football, Cecil Isbell's arm, has become the most overworked weapon in the National Football league, throwing the Green Bay Packers to victory and the record books out the window.

Isbell shook five touchdown passes from his sleeve yesterday as the Packers crushed the Chicago Cardinals 55 to 24. Beaten only by the Bears, the Green Bay eleven is gathering momentum for its second, and showdown meeting with the national champions Nov. 15 in Chicago.

Green Bay goes to Cleveland this Sunday while the Bears travel to Brooklyn, the Cardinals to Washington, Pittsburgh to Detroit and New York to Philadelphia.

The Washington Redskins, plying along in a two-game lead in the eastern division, downed the Philadelphia Eagles 30 to 27.

The Cleveland Rams virtually ruined the Brooklyn Dodgers' eastern division title chances by scooping up a 17 to 0 triumph to move into third position in the western section. George Platukis recovered a fumble and lumbered 36 yards for one touchdown. The second capped a 70-yard drive, with Parker Hall, dusting end for nine yards and the marker. Chet Adams closed the scoring with a 36-yard field goal.

Rolling to their 19th consecutive win, the Bears handed the Detroit Lions their seventh straight setback, 16 to 0, in a successful debut for co-coaches Luke Johnson and Hunk Anderson.

Curt Sandig of St. Mary's Texas and Bill Dudley of Virginia—a pair of rookies—darted 62 and 65 yards, respectively, to herd the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 17 to 9 victory over the New York Giants.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK—(AP)—This is one day when baseball players may be worrying about the draft, but aren't afraid of it . . . Anybody whose name comes out of the hat at Chicago will get a chance in the majors—and he'll have pretty good prospects of sticking if he is classified 3-A or 4-F in the other draft.

This unrestricted draft business, as we get it, grew out of one of Judge Landis' anti-farm rulings . . . The old system was for a team with a lot of farms to switch all the good prospects to one club, then as soon as one was drafted the rest were safe . . But the rule now reads that one club can't keep control of a player more than three years unless he is subject to the draft, so all the three-year men have to go into that unrestricted group or go out of the chain anyway.

MONDAY MATINEE

The national semi-pro baseball congress has adopted red caps, white trousers and blue coats as the costume for umpires in its 1943 tournament at Wichita, Kas. . . . Headline: "Turfmen face shortage of horse cars." . . . We thought they all had disappeared years ago.

WRONG SIGNAL

Foxy Flumere, Northwestern U football coach, hasn't complained about such difficulties as having a varsity squad that included 11 freshmen who only meet the upperclassmen when they have a game, having to play a one-armed lineman and a few other such difficulties, but he's a bit embarrassed about a happening at a recent freshman game . . . Trying to give all the kids some action, Foxy saw a big fellow on the bench and hollored, "Go in at right tackle." . . . When the big guy didn't move, Flumere inquired how come and found he was the janitor of a nearby apartment house.

ROSE PLOY HALFBACK TAKES SCORING LEAD

NEW YORK—(AP)—Eddie McGovern, Rose Poly halfback, garnered five touchdowns and five extra points Saturday as Rose drubbed Franklin, also of Indiana, and hiked his point collection for four games to 106—the best collegiate mark in the nation.

His demonstration shunted Bob Steuer of Missouri to second place among the leaders in various sections. Steuber, leader a week ago with 83 points, was kept completely in check by the Sailors of Great Lakes.

Bill Misses Relaxation

Can't Let Down In Professional Game.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Bill Dudley, brilliant backfield star of the surprising Pittsburgh Steelers, misses the "relaxation" of college football.

Dudley made the revelation after reporters had been in a lengthy huddle with big Walt Keisling, florid-faced coach of the Steelers, who now occupy second place in the National pro football standings.

Big Walt—apparently a swell fellow—talked intelligently to reporters while Dudly took his shower in the visitors' dressing room at the Polo Grounds, where the Steelers had downed the New York Giants, 17-9.

Keisling said, "Dudley wasn't himself today. He was handicapped by an injury on the inside of his left knee. No, he wasn't running like he can.

Maybe it was the sloppy field, some of the reporters suggested. But Coach Keisling replied that it wasn't the field.

Big Keisling said, "I wish Dudley could have had a good day in his first New York showing. He really can go to town. But you couldn't expect too much of a cripple. There he is now—over there by his locker. You see, he can hardly walk."

It appeared that Keisling had made no mistake, for the guy on a line from his fingernail was just a little fellow. But you could appreciate quickly that he had seen action of some kind because the whole right side of his face was bruised and there was a big gash across his nose. He was limping. Keisling explained that Dudley was the second lightest man on the Pittsburgh squad, packing only 176 pounds on a five-foot-eleven chassis.

As Dudley inspected himself ruefully in a non-trustworthy mirror and gave his shower-moistened brown locks a couple of old-fashioned licks we talked to him. We found him as approachable as a high school freshman. He replied readily to questions in a soft southern drawl. He had just paced the Steelers to a triumph that put them in second place in the league, scoring the wrap-up touchdown and sparking them throughout the game as he personally gained 135 yards to continue his yardage-gained lead in the circuit. But he, too, was contrite. He apologized for his game left knee.

He said, "I didn't run like I should."

We replied, "but you did pretty good anyway."

Then we asked, "Bill, what's the big difference you find between pro football and the college game?" Bill was high scorer in college football last season, then he carried the pigskin at the University of Virginia.

Fair-skinned Dudley replied, "the big difference between the college and the pro game that I have found is that you can't relax for a second among the professionals. I have played about 50 minutes of each Steeler game this season, and I've had to be on my toes all the time.

"In college it was different. I could let down — relax — during certain stages of every game, or on certain plays, particularly when I knew we were going to run one through a weak spot, and I wasn't carrying. But in the pro game there are no weak spots, and whether you are carrying or not you've got assignments to carry out against fellows who are awfully good.

Bullet Bill sees no chance of letting down after the pro season is over because he already has enlisted in the army air corps. He expects to be called in January. "Then I aim to be a good pilot," he said.

Unbeaten Elevens Dwindle

Six Top Notchers Fall By Wayside Saturday.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

NEW YORK—(AP)—With virtually all the conference pictures more clearly defined after last week's slam-bang program, the nation's football teams moved into the final month of the campaign today, many of them with stiff assignments dead ahead.

Although the coming weekend can't hope to produce anything as exciting as the past one, when such teams as Ohio State, Alabama, Army, Syracuse, Texas Christian and Detroit were bounced out of the undefeated ranks, there will be enough action to go around.

In the western conference, Wisconsin stands alone at the front of the title chase after dumping Ohio State, 17-7, and the Badgers can protect that lead by taking their next three games, the first of them with Iowa next Saturday. Iowa's 13-6 triumph over Purdue was its second in three conference starts.

Ohio State has a non-conference date with Pitt this week and Purdue also steps out of the loop to play the Great Lakes Sailors, who blanked Missouri, 17-0.

After handing Illinois its first confernece setback, 28-14, Michigan takes on Harvard in an intersectional duel. Illinois tangles with Northwestern and Minnesota. 19-7 conqueror of Northwestern, meets Indiana in conference play.

Army's 19-0 loss to Pennsylvania took a little of the edge off this week's tussle between the Cadets and Notre Dame at New York's Yankee Stadium, but the Irish prepared for the classic by sinking Navy, 9-0. Penny and Navy get together at Philadelphia at the same time.

Boston college, which remained unbeaten and untied by swamping Georgetown, 47-0, catches Temple.

Georgia, which looms as the best in the South if not in the entire country after stopping previously unbeaten Alabama, 21-10, meets another but weaker southeastern conference opponent, Florida. Alabama tangles with South Carolina and Maryland, 13-0 winner over Florida. Georgia Tech, still unbeaten and untied after stopping Duke, 26-7, takes on Kentucky.

With Texas Christian out of the way, Baylor and Texas collide head-on with the southwest conference lead and perhaps the title at stake. Baylor knocked T. C. U. out of the unbeaten ranks, 10-7, while Texas handled Southern Methodist, 21-7.

In the Pacific Coast conference, first-place U. C. L. A. meets Oregon in quest of league victory number four.

Tulsa, unbeaten, untied and unscored on, meets Oklahoma A. and M. with the Missouri Valley championship at stake.

Majors Conduct Baseball Draft

CHICAGO —(AP)— The delayed major league draft meeting will be held today in the office of Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis, but the turnout of club representatives may be slim.

With the crop of major league players pretty well taken care of by enlistments and army draft calls, few major players possibilities were considered likely and many of the clubs were expected to handle their filing or waiving of draft claims by telegraph.

* * *

The meeting was delayed this year to permit the minor clubs more time to dispose of their players on a barter basis.

CHAPTER V

But she must talk to someone or bust. Vera and George had gone out. She telephoned Bruce. There was no answer. She was suddenly depressed. He had a life of which she knew nothing. Perhaps he was a regular Don Juan, picking up girls and making love to them. He must think she was cheap calling on him at the hospital, and then going to his home. She squirmed at the recollection of how she had deliberately flirted with him.

"You didn't tell me who the man was?" Her mother seemed to read her thoughts. Livia started.

"Just a casual acquaintance." That's what he was and must remain. "I'll soon put him in his place," she told herself decidedly. And felt happy in remembering she was lunching with him tomorrow.

Livia slept late. There was a story about her screen test in the morning "Gazette" and they seemed to think a contract had already been signed. There were letters for her from dress shops, furriers and jewelers. A house agent offered her a bargain. "The house and grounds cost the owner $120,000," he said. She could have it for $25,000. There was also a letter from a boy of nineteen who had fallen in love with her photograph. He wanted to marry her. He was without a job at this particular moment. "But," he wrote, "two can live on your salary as cheaply as one!"

All morning the telephone rang. It seemed that everyone in Los Angeles had something to sell her. Livia painstakingly wrote down the telephone numbers of the salesmen.

"I'll call you later in the week," she told them.

Should she check with the studio about her test? But they would think her too eager. No, they must call her.

She arrived at Bruce's bungalow, her cheeks flushed and her eyes brightly eager.

"We're going out for lunch," he said. She forgot her plan to put him in his place.

"Why?—can't we eat here?"

"No," his voice was short. She felt snubbed.

He took her to a little Italian restaurant. He was hard to reach today. Maybe it was his injured arm, it must be hurting him.

"No—it's much better," he told Livia, "I ought to be able to work in about ten days. Have you heard from the studio yet?"

"No—I—er—I was hoping you would call Mr. Nevins for me. I don't want to seem too eager. Will you?"

He rolled a cigaret before answering.

"You're excited, aren't you? You really want to be a movie actress?"

"More than anything else in the world," she said. "I wish you'd call Mr. Nevins now. I'm not good at waiting—and this suspense is driving me crazy."

"All right . . . It's a tough life—the movies, for a girl," he said suddenly.

"What's tough about it? Lots of money, clothes, and everyone wanting to know you, and—"

"And you've been reading too many fan magazines," he interrupted her. "They don't mention the hard work, the heartbreak, the years of struggle — unless you're lucky."

"Didn't I tell you? I'm one of the lucky ones," she laughed into his serious face.

"How did your mother take it?" he asked.

"Beautifully," lied Livia. He seemed disappointed. "What's happened to you?" she leaned toward him. "Yesterday you were as excited as I was—"

"I've been thinking," he said slowly, "I honestly don't think you'll like it—you're too—er, too independent. And some of those producers—"

Ah, that was it. He was jealous. She smiled at him.

"Don't worry—I can take care of the producers." She pushed the food away. "It's no use—I can't eat a thing until I know about the test . . . Let's go to your bungalow and call Mr. Nevins. He might be there now."

Bruce called for his check, and they walked to his home. But he seemed in no hurry to call the studio. Livia looked aimlessly at the titles of his books and contrived a flippant conversation. But her eyes continually sought her watch. At 2:30.

"Mr. Nevins must be there now. Please, please call him."

"I—er—called him this morning," Bruce said slowly.

"Oh, how mean not to tell me. What did they say and how much are they going to pay me?"

"Wait a minute—let me finish . . . They haven't made up their minds." He watched her closely. She slumped into a chair with a disappointed "Oh."

"Then we'd better wait a bit. I mustn't seem too anxious." She deliberately forced her thoughts away from herself. She talked about her mother and Vera—and told him that Vera soon would marry George Maxwell and that she did not like him very much.

Bruce was silent. He seemed angry about something.

"Am I boring you?" she asked him suddenly. The smile he gave her was full of compassion. He was pitying her! But what for? A coldness settled on her heart. The test! He knew. Very faintly she said, "They didn't like me—I—no contract?"

"No contract," he said quietly. "I didn't know how to tell you. This morning when I called Nevins—"

"Don't," said Livia chokingly . . . "But why?" she demanded fiercely, "What's wrong with me?"

"Can you take the truth?"

"Yes, of course I can." Bruce glanced at her, then addressed the ceiling:

"They said you photographed badly, and—" he hesitated— "and that your acting was too wooden. Personally, I think they're crazy." A heavy weight settled over her heart. "So you see," said Bruce slowly, "maybe it's better for you to teach school. At least there you'll—"

"I hate you," burst out Livia, "you're like my mother. I'm not going to be a schoolmistress—now or ever. I'm going to be a movie star—if it kills me."

And suddenly she wept.

Bruce came over to her and gently smoothed her hair. But she moved away from his caress angrily. She didn't want his pity. He accepted the rebuff silently. And Livia felt ashamed. It wasn't Bruce's fault. She smiled an apology through her tears.

"I was so sure they'd sign me up. Well, anyway," she said with a short, unhappy laugh, "mother will be glad."

Suddenly Bruce stood up.

"Will you wait here?" he said, "Maybe I can do something."

She looked at him curiously. He was going to a lot of trouble in her behalf. Were these strings attached? But she didn't care why he was helping her. She was just glad that he was.

"I'll be back soon," he told her, "Make yourself comfortable."

Two hours passed before his return. First he had gone to the studio to see whether there was a chance of a reconsidered verdict. There was not.

Nevins grinned knowingly and asked: "What's going on between you two?" He drew back hastily at Bruce's threatening attitude. You did not fight with Bruce—even with a bad arm. "I didn't mean what you thought I meant. She's a nice girl."

"You bet she's a nice girl."

Bruce saw the director who had made the test. The Britisher with whom Livia made the test had been signed to a contract.

"But the girl?" The director shook his head. A producer at the studio spread his hands when Bruce asked him to help Livia.

"I'd like to, but I've too many relatives wanting my help."

Then Bruce went to the Mammoth Studios where he was employed. They were all glad to see him, but cooled when he mentioned Livia. If her test was a failure, she couldn't be any good, they argued.

Bruce was on the point of giving up when he saw Johnny Einfeld. Johnny had the softest heart in Hollywood. Seventeen years of directing pictures had not crushed the generous impulses for which he was famous. Old-timers without a job haunted his office, and if there was a possible bit for them in his pictures, they got it. And if not, well, they never left empty-handed.

"I was coming to see you in the hospital," he told Bruce, shaking the hand of his good arm, "You should be resting — not rushing around the studios."

"I'm tough," laughed Bruce, "I'd work tomorrow if they'd let me." Bruce took Johnny into an empty office. "I want you to do me a favor. There's a girl—she's the kid who won the Charm Girl' competition." Johnny nodded.

"She seemed cute in the photographs."

"Cute? She's lovely," Bruce told him of the failure of her test, concluding, "They didn't take any trouble with her, that's all. Anyone can photograph well if—" Johnny laughed.

"Bruce, this is the longest speech I've heard you make." He became serious. "You're in love with her, aren't you?" Bruce nodded.

"I'd ask her to marry me—only this isn't the time. And I'd want more to offer her."

"Still want to produce pictures?" Johnny said. Bruce nodded. Johnny shook his head. "You know I'll give you job as an actor any time you want?"

"I don't want," said Bruce. "But about Livia, I'll be grateful if you do something for her."

"Sure I will," said Johnny. Bruce grasped his hand. "I can use her as an extra. We can use a lot of them in my next picture." Bruce's smile faded.

"Oh, as an extra. I thought a part—"

"But you told me yourself she couldn't act." Bruce had seen Livia's test, and he was too honest to disagree with the verdict of the studio.

"But with training—" he began.

"Where better can she learn the fundamentals of acting than on the set, watching the big boys and girls? It beats all the drama schools in the world. If she's ambitious and smart, she'll go places from there. And I'll watch out for her," Johnny liked this lanky Westerner, "And if a line comes up that she can do, I'll give it to her."

"Thanks."

Livia waited at the door of his bungalow. Her frown vanished at the sight of his bright face.

"You've good news—quick, tell me!" They went inside, and she turned to him eagerly, "Well?"

"You can work in pictures tomorrow. Johnny Einfield's giving you a job—" he watched her narrowly—"as an extra."

"Oh!" Livia made no attempt to conceal her disappointment. "I hadn't thought of extra work," she said slowly. "No, thank you. I think I can do better for myself." She put on her hat, and held out her hand to him. 'Thank you," she said quietly, "You've been awfully kind." And then she turned to go. Bruce swung her around to face him.

"This is a good break for you. You must learn to act somewhere". She pulled her hand away and was icily polite.

"I know you've tried to help me. But that doesn't give you the right to be rude to me. Goodbye."

She was half-way down the street when she realized she had left her handbag in Bruce's bungalow. Without it she had no money and would have to walk home. There was nothing for her to do but go back and be as dignified as possible under the circumstances.

"So you've changed your mind?" Bruce said when she entered the bungalow. "I thought you had too much sense to act that way."

"My handbag—oh, there it is," said Livia. She walked to the door. Bruce caught her wrist with his uninjured hand. He brought her back into the room.

"Let me pass," she said with deceptive sweetness.

"Sit down." As she continued to stand, he pushed her firmly into the leather chair. "You're like the rest of them," he said without looking at her obstinate, sullen face. "You want things easy. You want things to fall into your lap without effort. Well, they don't—you've got to work for your privileges. Wise up on yourself—"

"Is the lecture finished?" she asked him crisply.

"I reckon so," he said slowly. Then I'll go." She stood up. But Bruce loomed above her.

"I'll see you again—I hope."

"I don't think so."

"I know so," and he drew her to him and kissed her. She struggled for a few seconds, then relaxed. He released her. "Now you can go."

She laughed. "But I don't want to."

He kissed her hair, her eyes, and the pink lobe of her ear. As she was about to speak, he kissed her lips again.

For a while she could not speak.

"I was only going to ask you the name of that director," she said.

DRAFT NEARS FAMILY HEAD

LA JUNTA, Col. —(U.P.)— Draft boards are scraping near the bottom of the manpower barrel in some sections of Colorado. Otero county officials announced that married men with children probably will be inducted into the army from the region shortly after the first of the year.

THEATERS

R. A. F. Thriller.

"Desperate Journey," Errol Flynn's new picture at the Ohio is a turn-about face from "The Invaders," the story of German agents who savagely cut their way across the Hudson Bay country after being stranded by a submarine. In Flynn's production the action concerns a quintet of R.A.F. men who, shot down in Germany, give the gestapo a merry chase until three of the group get back to Britain. The flyers take all sorts of chances from giving an enemy agent a hard right to the jaw to starting incendiary fires and creating general confusion. Ronald Reagan, Nancy Coleman, Raymond Massey and Alan Hale are in the supporting cast.

Stage Band.

The orchestra that broke all records at the Apollo theater in New York City when 21 mounties of the city police force were called out to stop the jitterbug demonstration in front of the theater appears on the Madison stage today. Charlie Barnet's band that is known for both the sweet and swing styles of music will be heard at four performances as will the featured entertainers including Rita Bradley, Huck Andrews, Cliff Leeman and Howard McGhee. The "sax sensation," as Barnet is known, has just finished a new picture, "Fifty Million Nickels," for which he wrote the theme. Lloyd Nolan's picture, "Just Off Broadway," headlines the screen bill. Tuesday and Wednesday, "My Sister Eileen," will be shown.

Spy Plot.

Story of a spy ring bent on destroying all essential service in Los Angeles through sabotage at a given signal is set forth in "Foreign Agent," the Ritz attraction. John Shelton plays the secret service agent who taps the source of a nation-wide fifth-column movement and the cast includes Gale Storm and Herbert Rawlinson. Lorothy Lamour is beautiful in technicolor in the second film, "Beyond the Blue Horizon," with Richard Denning, Jack Haley and Walter Abel.

Campus Film.

"Youth On Parade," the Park attraction, is a collegiate picture co-starring John Hubbard and Ruth Terry. George Murphy appears in the second attraction, "The Mayor of 44th Street." Anne Shirley is also featured.

CANDY POPULAR WITH SOLDIERS

Servicemen Still Like Sweets Just as They Did In Last War.

OKLAHOMA CITY — (U.P.) — It was candy then and it's candy now. The boys "over there" preferred candy in 1917 and they still have a sweet tooth in 1942.

Jerry Marker, parcel post department, was a postal employe during the last war and he has a keen memory, especially about the packages mailed to our soldiers and sailors during the yuletide season of '17.

"People still are sending candy but the kind and container has changed," he commented, "and, of course, it is condensed. In 1917 lots of chocolate candy went over the postal office desks in boxes but now regulations require that you only send hard candy in vacuum-sealed tins.

"I don't know whether the foreign candy makers put too little sugar in or what, but the boys surely do write home for sweets and hundreds of pounds of candy are going out marked 'Christmas package.'

"Watches were popular Christmas gifts in the last war and this one too, but the styles have changed. Last time they were pocket watches with chains and now they are wrist watches with fancy straps.

"There were no postal regulations before and now there are so many you must whittle the list of gifts to nothing. Before you could send a package as big as you liked and weighing anything short of 50 pounds. Now 11 pounds is the limit, with recommendations for six-pound packages.

"Airmail packages must be under two ounces which means only tie pins, razor blades, rings and handkerchiefs will be delivered by air.

"Favorites among soldiers and sailors then and now are cigarets, jewelry, chewing gum, stationery, soap, razor blades, cameras and film. Preferences new in this war are radios, Christmas cards and comic magazines. Gifts that are outdated are compasses, knee-length boot laces and pipes.

All gifts for overseas must be addressed to the army postoffice in New York for stations in the Atlantic and to San Francisco for bases in the Pacific.

Rooster Serves As Alarm Clock For Army Bugler

CAMP EDWARDS, Mass. —(INS) — Who wakes up the bugler who wakes up the men?

Well it's this way:

The Engineer Amphibian Command has a rooster called "The Ranger."

"The Ranger" rends the air with his raucous call every morning at the break of dawn.

Softened up by the clarion call, the soldiers fall easy prey to the bugle of the awakened instrumentalist.

"The Ranger" is no alarm clock. In fact he is always just one jump ahead of the frying pan. Too enthusiastic over his duties, he sometimes sounds off at—to say the least—undesirable hours.

You are NOT required to write a letter to receive an award.

The awards are decided on the selections above. We would really appreciate it, though, if you would write a note saying what you DO NOT LIKE and . . . also . . . WHY YOU LIKED some of the good ads.

We sincerely want your suggestions and ideas of how we may improve our advertising service for your benefit. Write your letter in your own way! It's the thoughts and suggestions that matter. You are not being "judged" by your letters. Actually they have nothing to do with the awards . . . but . . . they will be helpful by giving additional information to our merchants.

Your criticisms and suggestions will be given to the merchants to help them to improve their advertisements BUT the merchants will NOT be given the names of those who write the letters. This is so you may say just what you really think without embarrassment.

Answers Must Be In By Tuesday Midnight The Week After the Selections Are Made!

Sport Podge

by REX HESS

It is now First Lieutenant Earl Richert of the U. S. Army air force, somewhere in England.

A letter received by Glenn Robinson, Hedges school principal, from the former Mansfield school teacher, football official, and ex-Madison High football and basketball star, reports the recent promotion.

The letter, written a month ago and just arrived, says the weather in England at that time was just like Indian summer back home, with very cool nights.

"Have been to London several times and have seen all the sights," Richert writes. "I have never seen a town so full of statues as London. All over the place.

"They play football here, but it is not the same game. Rugby which is similar. Our food is very good, and I don't think I have lost any weight yet. The scales over here weigh you in stones. One stone is equal to 14 pounds."

In a previous letter Richert disclosed he had flown in the famous Dieppe raid of last summer. At least Robinson put two and two together and decided that was what Richert was talking about when he said:

"Well things are back to normal once again. It was very, very hot Wednesday, and rather warm again Thursday. I never in my life sweat so much before. Am glad that much is all over. Hope never to get caught in such a position as I was. There really wasn't much future in it at the time.

"It gives you a very empty feeling to have three people shooting at you at once, each with two 20 m.m. cannon. What a time!!! We are all very lucky to be alive, and that is the whole sweet, short story."

And from Johnny Burns, former manager of Mansfield Athletic Supply sport teams comes the following letter

Dear Rex: Well, here I am in foreign service, and getting a taste of life I never experienced before. I am living in the jungle about 17 miles from civilization. Have already seen jungle animals galore, such as boa constrictors, bushwhackers, sloth panthers, wild monkeys, wild boars and alligators.

I have been made a battery commander and am in complete charge of a whole battery of guns. Also supervise the ration distribution for the whole regiment. Although we have not seen any action, we expect it any time now.

We get very little time off. I see by your column that my old golf partner, Chuck Schlegel, got in a golf round in England. On one of my off days I found a fine course down here, and got in two rounds of a tournament. Posted a 79-76 to get in the running, but about five strokes off the pace.

* * *

Not much else to report, except that you realize there's no place like the U. S. after you leave it. Hope we get this mess over with in a hurry. So there's going to be a city league this winter?

Best regards,
Lt. John V. Burns

Ram Seniors Divide Scoring

Madison Closes Its Season Next Friday.

With their final game of the season coming up next Friday night against Mt Gilead Madison high school Rams were given a day off from practice by Coach Al Fendrick today.

Fendrick will spend the rest of the week working on several lineup changes, moving Rinehart to center, Morrison to tackle, and Gross in the backfield.

All of the senior members of the Ram team scored last Saturday in the Madison 45-0 victory at Bellville. Harold Hammer and Billy Wynne each got three touchdowns, Hammer getting the first on a 15-yard run on the second play of the game. Dick Bader got the other touchdown.

Poston took a pass for one extra point, and Seniors Spriesterbach and Rinehart were brought into the backfield for line plunges for extra points.

Reserves got to play nearly half the game for Madison, and were sparked by the fine play of Eccles, a sophomore, who went 50 yards on one run to the Bellville 1-yard line. Eccles recovered one fumble back of the line, tried to run with it, found himself trapped, and tossed a forward pass for a first down.

Buckeyes Slightly Deflated

Meet Pittsburgh In This Week's Feature.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio State's Bucks, slightly deflated after absorbing Saturday's 17-7 setback at Wisconsin (which cost them the state, Big Ten and national leadership) take time out from Western conference chores Saturday to meet Pittsburgh's Panthers here.

* * *

Pittsburgh defeated Carnegie Tech 19 to 6 Saturday, but isn't expected to be too tough for the Bucks as they clash in the headliner of a 23-game week-end program involving Ohio squads.

The Buckeye teams meet a dozen foes from outside the state, while five of the contests are in the Ohio conference where Ohio Northern, Denison and John Carroll are tied for the lead, after Otterbein fell from the peak Saturday by losing to Denison 6-0.

John Carroll is idle this week, but Ohio Northern tackles last-place Mount Union, and Denison takes on Wooster's Scots, who have won four of six—all in the league.

Wilberforce, leader in the state-wide standings, meets Kentucky State college at Frankfort, Ky. The Greene county Negro university has won five straight and may be headed for the national Negro collegiate laurels.

The week-end schedule:

Friday: Capital vs. Miami Radio unit at Hamilton (night); Muskingum at Washington and Jefferson:

Saturday: Findlay at Otterbein, Mount Union at Ohio Northern, Baldwin Wallace at Case, Denison at Wooster, Wittenberg at Bowling Green (all Ohio conference contests), Ohio U. at Western Reserve, Toledo at Butler, Marshall at Xavier, Akron at Wayne, Pittsburgh at Ohio State, Miami at Ohio Wesleyan, Oberlin at Allegheny, Wabash at Kenyon, Elmhurst (Ill.) at Heidelberg, Kent State at Hiram, Wilberforce at Kentucky State college, Youngstown at Geneva, Cincinnati at Tennessee, Chattanooga at Dayton, Defiance at Bluffton, and Rio Grande at Marietta.

Has High Game In Girls' Bowling

Marge McClure turned in high game of 146 in the high school girls' bowling league at Colony alleys last Friday.

GALION GRIDDER STILL LEADS EAST

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—(U.P.)—Sophomore halfback Jim Secrest of Galion, O., scored four touchdowns and ran his season scoring total to 78 points Saturday to remain among the East's top scorer as the University of Rochester blanked Allegheny 41-0.

In his first sloppy field effort, Secrest tallied on runs of 1, 2, 27 and 69 yards. He carried the ball 13 times for a 143-yard gain, and 11 yard average, as Rochester netted a 396 yard total.

In Rochester's six games Secrest has scored 13 touchdowns, an average of 13 points a game.

Badgers Have Title Hopes

Ohio State Fumbles Bring About Defeat.

COLUMBUS —(INS)— While the scarlet and gray flag of Ohio State was flying at half mast today, Wisconsin's aspirations to a Western conference football crown blazed anew as the result of the Badger's smashing 17-7 verdict over the Buckeyes in Saturday's battle.

Wisconsin is now the only undefeated team in the Western Conference as well as the Midwest and anyone who expects to participate in the scramble for the Big Nine bunting this fall will have to trim the Badgers to do it.

Minnesota, the mighty Gophers of old, continued their stepped up pace by trimming Northwestern 19-7 and Iowa shoved Perdue deeper into the ranks of the vanquished with a 13-7 conquest of the Boilermakers.

Michigan walloped Illinois, 28-14, and the Iowa Seahawks rose in angry fury with a 26-point splunge in the final period to subjugate Indiana, 26-6.

The latter games went according to form, but the Buck-Badgers tilt was giving the dope bucket a healthy kick as most of the "guesperts" had predicted an Ohio State victory.

The triumph for Harry Stuhldreher's lads was no fluke. It came as the result of a team playing 60 minutes of heads-up football, giving and taking no quarter.

Elroy Hirsch demonstrated one the greatest running exhibitions ever seen on Camp Randall field, thoroughly delighting an overflow crowd of some 45,000 rabid enthusiasts, largest crowd ever to witness a Wisconsin football game in Madison.

Ohio State played fine football, but it was not on a par with the type of play turned in by the Badgers at least on this particular Saturday afternoon.

Five Ohio State fumbles at crucial stages of apparent touchdown drives was the main factor contributing to the downfall of the Buckeyes, who entered the game as the nation's No. 1 collegiate unit. The statistical edge in total yardage gained during the game slightly favored Ohio, giving evidence that Brown's bombers "went down fighting."

Pat Harder also was a tough customer to handle and it was he who accounted for the 10 winning points on a two yard touchdown plunge and a 25-yard field goal after each scoring play had been set up by Hirsch, the sensational sophomore.

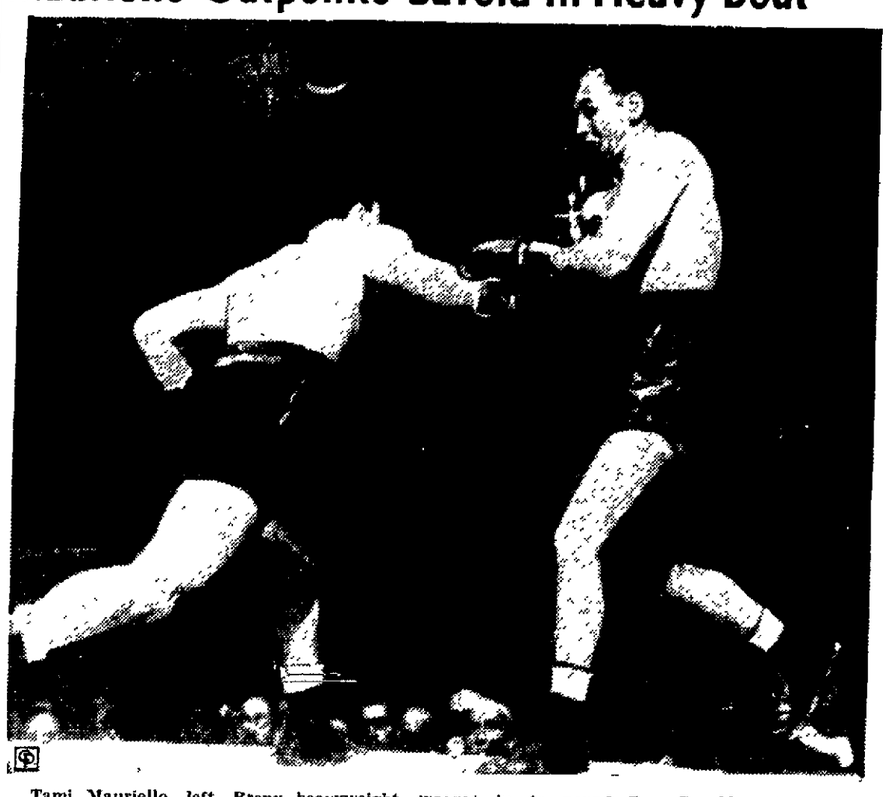
Ohio scored its only touchdown in the last quarter when Paul Sarringhaus climaxed a 96 yard downfield march with a three-yard plunge. Gene Fekete converted to run his Western Conference leading scoring total to 42 points.

Wisconsin's final score was also registered in the final period on a 14 yard pass. Hirsch to Dave Schreiner, Wisconsin's all-American flanker.

WINS IN WALK

CINCINNATI —(AP)— Walter Fleming, 34-year-old Detroit war worker, is the new National A A U 40-kilometer walking champion. He outstrode a field of 20 contestants, including defending champ John J. Abbate of Cincinnati, over the New Richmond-Cincinnati course, slightly under 25 miles yesterday. His time was three hours, 46 minutes, 48.6 seconds.

Mauriello Outpoints Savold In Heavy Bout



Tami Mauriello, left, Bronx heavyweight, weaves in to pound Lee Savold, veteran Des Moines scrapper, in an early stanza of their 10-round bout in Madison Square Garden, New York City. Mauriello recovered sufficiently from a fifth-round knockdown to win the decision on points. His victory gains Mauriello a match with Jimmy Bivins, Cleveland clouter, in New York on Nov. 27, for the National Boxing Association's "title" of heavyweight "champion for the duration."

Isbell Passes Score 5 Times

Green Bay Packers Crush Cardinals.

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO —(AP)— The magic wand of football, Cecil Isbell's arm, has become the most overworked weapon in the National Football league, throwing the Green Bay Packers to victory and the record books out the window.

Isbell shook five touchdown passes from his sleeve yesterday as the Packers crushed the Chicago Cardinals 55 to 24. Beaten only by the Bears, the Green Bay eleven is gathering momentum for its second, and showdown meeting with the national champions Nov. 15 in Chicago.

Green Bay goes to Cleveland this Sunday while the Bears travel to Brooklyn, the Cardinals to Washington, Pittsburgh to Detroit and New York to Philadelphia.

The Washington Redskins, plying along in a two-game lead in the eastern division, downed the Philadelphia Eagles 30 to 27.

The Cleveland Rams virtually ruined the Brooklyn Dodgers' eastern division title chances by scooping up a 17 to 0 triumph to move into third position in the western section. George Platukis recovered a fumble and lumbered 36 yards for one touchdown. The second capped a 70-yard drive, with Parker Hall, dusting end for nine yards and the marker. Chet Adams closed the scoring with a 36-yard field goal.

Rolling to their 19th consecutive win, the Bears handed the Detroit Lions their seventh straight setback, 16 to 0, in a successful debut for co-coaches Luke Johnson and Hunk Anderson.

* * *

Curt Sandig of St. Mary's Texas and Bill Dudley of Virginia—a pair of rookies—darted 62 and 65 yards, respectively, to herd the Pittsburgh Steelers to a 17 to 9 victory over the New York Giants.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

By HUGH FULLERTON, Jr.

NEW YORK—(AP)—This is one day when baseball players may be worrying about the draft, but aren't afraid of it . . . Anybody whose name comes out of the hat at Chicago will get a chance in the majors—and he'll have pretty good prospects of sticking if he is classified 3-A or 4-F in the other draft.

This unrestricted draft business, as we get it, grew out of one of Judge Landis' anti-farm rulings. . . . The old system was for a team with a lot of farms to switch all the good prospects to one club, then as soon as one was drafted the rest were safe . . . But the rule now reads that one club can't keep control of a player more than three years unless he is subject to the draft, so all the three-year men have to go into that unrestricted group or go out of the chain anyway.

MONDAY MATINEE

The national semi-pro baseball congress has adopted red caps, white trousers and blue coats as the costume for umpires in its 1943 tournament at Wichita, Kas. . . . Headline: "Turfmen face shortage of horse cars." . . . We thought they all had disappeared years ago.

WRONG SIGNAL

Foxy Flumere, Northwestern U football coach, hasn't complained about such difficulties as having a varsity squad that included 11 freshmen who only meet the upperclassmen when they have a game, having to play a one-armed lineman and a few other such difficulties, but he's a bit embarrassed about a happening at a recent freshman game . . . Trying to give all the kids some action, Foxy saw a big fellow on the bench and hollored, "Go in at right tackle" . . . When the big guy didn't move, Flumere inquired how come and found he was the janitor of a nearby apartment house.

36 Bar Holds League Lead

Johnny Leppo Rolls High A-Loop Total.

First place lead in the City "A" bowling league at Colony alleys was retained yesterday by 36 Bar with a 2-1 win over Liederkranz.

Johnny Leppo of Bissman's turned in high total with a string of 246-210-197—653. Art Hilborn rolled a 641 on 220-212-209, Johnny Bernat had 636 on 204-248-184, and Brig Young chalked up 615 on 179-210-226.

Bernat's 248 was the league's high game.

ROSE PLOY HALFBACK TAKES SCORING LEAD

NEW YORK—(AP)—Eddie McGovern, Rose Poly halfback, garnered five touchdowns and five extra points Saturday as Rose drubbed Franklin, also of Indiana, and hiked his point collection for four games to 106—the best collegiate mark in the nation.

His demonstration shunted Bob Steuer of Missouri to second place among the leaders in various sections. Steuber, leader a week ago with 88 points, was kept completely in check by the Sailors of Great Lakes.

Bill Misses Relaxation

Can't Let Down In Professional Game.

By JACK CUDDY

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Bill Dudley, brilliant backfield star of the surprising Pittsburgh Steelers, misses the "relaxation" of college football.

Dudley made the revelation after reporters had been in a lengthy huddle with big Walt Keisling, florid-faced coach of the Steelers, who now occupy second place in the National pro football standings.

Big Walt—apparently a swell fellow—talked intelligently to reporters while Dudly took his shower in the visitors' dressing room at the Polo Grounds, where the Steelers had downed the New York Giants, 17-9.

Keisling said, "Dudley wasn't himself today. He was handicapped by an injury on the inside of his left knee. No, he wasn't running like he can.

Maybe it was the sloppy field, some of the reporters suggested. But Coach Keisling replied that it wasn't the field.

Big Keisling said, "I wish Dudley could have had a good day in his first New York showing. He really can go to town. But you couldn't expect too much of a cripple. There he is now—over there by his locker. You see, he can hardly walk."

It appeared that Keisling had made no mistake, for the guy on a line from his fingernail was just a little fellow. But you could appreciate quickly that he had seen action of some kind because the whole right side of his face was bruised and there was a big gash across his nose. He was limping. Keisling explained that Dudley was the second lightest man on the Pittsburgh squad, packing only 176 pounds on a five-foot-eleven chassis.

As Dudley inspected himself ruefully in a non-trustworthy mirror and gave his shower-moistened brown locks a couple of old-fashioned licks we talked to him. We found him as approachable as a high school freshman. He replied readily to questions in a soft southern drawl. He had just paced the Steelers to a triumph that put them in second place in the league, scoring the wrap-up touchdown and sparking them throughout the game as he personally gained 135 yards to continue his yardage-gained lead in the circuit. But he, too, was contrite. He apologized for his game left knee.

He said, "I didn't run like I should."

We replied, "but you did pretty good anyway."

Then we asked, "Bill, what's the big difference you find between pro football and the college game?" Bill was high scorer in college football last season, then he carried the pigskin at the University of Virginia.

Fair-skinned Dudley replied, "the big difference between the college and the pro game that I have found is that you can't relax for a second among the professionals. I have played about 50 minutes of each Steeler game this season, and I've had to be on my toes all the time.

"In college it was different. I could let down—relax—during certain stages of every game, or on certain plays, particularly when I knew we were going to run one through a weak spot, and I wasn't carrying. But in the pro game there are no weak spots, and whether you are carrying or not you've got assignments to carry out against fellows who are awfully good.

Bullet Bill sees no chance of letting down after the pro season is over because he already has enlisted in the army air corps. He expects to be called in January. "Then I aim to be a good pilot," he said.

Six Top Notchers Fall By Wayside Saturday.

By AUSTIN BEALMEAR

NEW YORK—(AP)—With virtually all the conference pictures more clearly defined after last week's slam-bang program, the nation's football teams moved into the final month of the campaign today, many of them with stiff assignments dead ahead.

Although the coming week-end can't hope to produce anything as exciting as the past one, when such teams as Ohio State, Alabama, Army, Syracuse, Texas Christian and Detroit were bounced out of the undefeated ranks, there will be enough action to go around.

In the western conference, Wisconsin stands alone at the front of the title chase after dumping Ohio State, 17-7, and the Badgers can protect that lead by taking their next three games, the first of them with Iowa next Saturday. Iowa's 13-6 triumph over Purdue was its second in three conference starts.

Ohio State has a non-conference date with Pitt this week and Purdue also steps out of the loop to play the Great Lakes Sailors, who blanked Missouri, 17-0.

After handing Illinois its first confernece setback, 28-14, Michigan takes on Harvard in an intersectional duel. Illinois tangles with Northwestern and Minnesota, 19-7 conqueror of Northwestern, meets Indiana in conference play.

Army's 19-0 loss to Pennsylvania took a little of the edge off this week's tussle between the Cadets and Notre Dame at New York's Yankee Stadium, but the Irish prepared for the classic by sinking Navy, 9-0. Penny and Navy get together at Philadelphia at the same time.

Boston college, which remained unbeaten and untied by swamping Georgetown, 47-0, catches Temple.

Georgia, which looms as the best in the South if not in the entire country after stopping previously unbeaten Alabama, 21-10, meets another but weaker southeastern conference opponent, Florida. Alabama tangles with South Carolina and Maryland, 13-0 winner over Florida. Georgia Tech, still unbeaten and untied after stopping Duke, 26-7, takes on Kentucky.

* * *

With Texas Christian out of the way, Baylor and Texas collide head-on with the southwest conference lead and perhaps the title at stake. Baylor knocked T. C. U. out of the unbeaten ranks, 10-7, while Texas handled Southern Methodist, 21-7.

In the Pacific Coast conference, first-place U. C. L. A. meets Oregon in quest of league victory number four.

Tulsa, unbeaten, untied and unscored on, meets Oklahoma A. and M. with the Missouri Valley championship at stake.

Majors Conduct Baseball Draft

CHICAGO —(AP)— The delayed major league draft meeting will be held today in the office of Baseball Commissioner K. M. Landis, but the turnout of club representatives may be slim.

With the crop of major league players pretty well taken care of by enlistments and army draft calls, few major players possibilities were considered likely and many of the clubs were expected to handle their filing or waiving of draft claims by telegraph.

* * *

The meeting was delayed this year to permit the minor clubs more time to dispose of their players on a barter basis.

CHAPTER V

But she must talk to someone or bust. Vera and George had gone out. She telephoned Bruce. There was no answer. She was suddenly depressed. He had a life of which she knew nothing. Perhaps he was a regular Don Juan, picking up girls and making love to them. He must think she was cheap calling on him at the hospital, and then going to his home. She squirmed at the recollection of how she had deliberately flirted with him.

"You didn't tell me who the man was?" Her mother seemed to read her thoughts. Livia started.

"Just a casual acquaintance." That's what he was and must remain. "I'll soon put him in his place," she told herself decidedly. And felt happy in remembering she was lunching with him tomorrow.

Livia slept late. There was a story about her screen test in the morning "Gazette" and they seemed to think a contract had already been signed. There were letters for her from dress shops, furriers and jewelers. A house agent offered her a bargain. "The house and grounds cost the owner $120,000," he said. She could have it for $25,000. There was also a letter from a boy of nineteen who had fallen in love with her photograph. He wanted to marry her. He was without a job at this particular moment. "But," he wrote, "two can live on your salary as cheaply as one!"

All morning the telephone rang. It seemed that everyone in Los Angeles had something to sell her. Livia painstakingly wrote down the telephone numbers of the salesmen.

"I'll call you later in the week," she told them.

Should she check with the studio about her test? But they would think her too eager. No, they must call her.

She arrived at Bruce's bungalow, her cheeks flushed and her eyes brightly eager.

"We're going out for lunch," he said. She forgot her plan to put him in his place.

"Why?—can't we eat here?"

"No," his voice was short. She felt snubbed.

He took her to a little Italian restaurant. He was hard to reach today. Maybe it was his injured arm, it must be hurting him.

"No—it's much better," he told Livia, "I ought to be able to work in about ten days. Have you heard from the studio yet?"

"No—I—er—I was hoping you would call Mr. Nevins for me. I don't want to seem too eager. Will you?"

He rolled a cigaret before answering.

"You're excited, aren't you? You really want to be a movie actress?"

"More than anything else in the world," she said. "I wish you'd call Mr. Nevins now. I'm not good at waiting—and this suspense is driving me crazy."

"All right . . . It's a tough life—the movies, for a girl," he said suddenly.

"What's tough about it? Lots of money, clothes, and everyone wanting to know you, and—"

"And you've been reading too many fan magazines," he interrupted her. "They don't mention the hard work, the heartbreak, the years of struggle — unless you're lucky."

"Didn't I tell you? I'm one of the lucky ones," she laughed into his serious face.

"How did your mother take it?" he asked.

"Beautifully," lied Livia. He seemed disappointed. "What's happened to you?" she leaned toward him. "Yesterday you were as excited as I was—"

"I've been thinking," he said slowly, "I honestly don't think you'll like it—you're too—er, too independent. And some of those producers—"

Ah, that was it. He was jealous. She smiled at him.

"Don't worry—I can take care of the producers." She pushed the food away. "It's no use—I can't eat a thing until I know about the test . . . Let's go to your bungalow and call Mr. Nevins. He might be there now."

Bruce called for his check, and they walked to his home. But he seemed in no hurry to call the studio. Livia looked aimlessly at the titles of his books and contrived a flippant conversation. But her eyes continually sought her watch. At 2:30.

"Mr. Nevins must be there now. Please, please call him."

"I—er—called him this morning," Bruce said slowly.

"Oh, how mean not to tell me. What did they say and how much are they going to pay me?"

"Wait a minute—let me finish . . . They haven't made up their minds." He watched her closely. She slumped into a chair with a disappointed "Oh."

"Then we'd better wait a bit. I mustn't seem too anxious." She deliberately forced her thoughts away from herself. She talked about her mother and Vera—and told him that Vera soon would marry George Maxwell and that she did not like him very much.

Bruce was silent. He seemed angry about something.

"Am I boring you?" she asked him suddenly. The smile he gave her was full of compassion. He was pitying her! But what for? A coldness settled on her heart. The test! He knew. Very faintly she said, "They didn't like me—I—no contract?"

"No contract," he said quietly. "I didn't know how to tell you. This morning when I called Nevins—"

"Don't," said Livia chokingly . . . "But why?" she demanded fiercely. "What's wrong with me?"

"Can you take the truth?"

"Yes, of course I can." Bruce glanced at her, then addressed the ceiling:

"They said you photographed badly, and—" he hesitated— "and that your acting was too wooden. Personally, I think they're crazy." A heavy weight settled over her heart. "So you see," said Bruce slowly, "maybe it's better for you to teach school. At least there you'll—"

"I hate you," burst out Livia, "you're like my mother. I'm not going to be a schoolmistress—now or ever. I'm going to be a movie star—if it kills me."

And suddenly she wept.

Bruce came over to her and gently smoothed her hair. But she moved away from his caress angrily. She didn't want his pity. He accepted the rebuff silently. And Livia felt ashamed. It wasn't Bruce's fault. She smiled an apology through her tears.

"I was so sure they'd sign me up. Well, anyway," she said with a short, unhappy laugh, "mother will be glad."

Suddenly Bruce stood up.

"Will you wait here?" he said, "Maybe I can do something."

She looked at him curiously. He was going to a lot of trouble in her behalf. Were these strings attached? But she didn't care why he was helping her. She was just glad that he was.

"I'll be back soon," he told her, "Make yourself comfortable."

Two hours passed before his return. First he had gone to the studio to see whether there was a chance of a reconsidered verdict. There was not.

Nevins grinned knowingly and asked: "What's going on between you two?" He drew back hastily at Bruce's threatening attitude. You did not fight with Bruce—even with a bad arm. "I didn't mean what you thought I meant. She's a nice girl."

"You bet she's a nice girl."

Bruce saw the director who had made the test. The Britisher with whom Livia made the test had been signed to a contract.

"But the girl?" The director shook his head. A producer at the studio spread his hands when Bruce asked him to help Livia.

"I'd like to, but I've too many relatives wanting my help."

Then Bruce went to the Mammoth Studios where he was employed. They were all glad to see him, but cooled when he mentioned Livia. If her test was a failure, she couldn't be any good, they argued.

Bruce was on the point of giving up when he saw Johnny Einfeld. Johnny had the softest heart in Hollywood. Seventeen years of directing pictures had not crushed the generous impulses for which he was famous. Old-timers without a job haunted his office, and if there was a possible bit for them in his pictures, they got it. And if not, well, they never left empty-handed.

"I was coming to see you in the hospital," he told Bruce, shaking the hand of his good arm. "You should be resting — not rushing around the studios."

"I'm tough," laughed Bruce, "I'd work tomorrow if they'd let me." Bruce took Johnny into an empty office. "I want you to do me a favor. There's a girl—she's the kid who won the Charm Girl' competition." Johnny nodded.

"She seemed cute in the photographs."

"Cute? She's lovely," Bruce told him of the failure of her test, concluding, "They didn't take any trouble with her, that's all. Anyone can photograph well if—" Johnny laughed.

"Bruce, this is the longest speech I've heard you make." He became serious. "You're in love with her, aren't you?" Bruce nodded.

"I'd ask her to marry me—only this isn't the time. And I'd want more to offer her."

"Still want to produce pictures?" Johnny said. Bruce nodded. Johnny shook his head. "You know I'll give you job as an actor any time you want?"

"I don't want," said Bruce. "But about Livia, I'll be grateful if you do something for her."

"Sure I will," said Johnny. Bruce grasped his hand. "I can use her as an extra. We can use a lot of them in my next picture." Bruce's smile faded.

"Oh, as an extra. I thought a part—"

"But you told me yourself she couldn't act." Bruce had seen Livia's test, and he was too honest to disagree with the verdict of the studio.

"But with training—" he began.

"Where better can she learn the fundamentals of acting than on the set, watching the big boys and girls? It beats all the drama schools in the world. If she's ambitious and smart, she'll go places from there. And I'll watch out for her," Johnny liked this lanky Westerner. "And if a line comes up that she can do, I'll give it to her."

"Thanks."

Livia waited at the door of his bungalow. Her frown vanished at the sight of his bright face.

"You've good news—quick, tell me!" They went inside, and she turned to him eagerly, "Well?"

"You can work in pictures tomorrow. Johnny Einfield's giving you a job—" he watched her narrowly—"as an extra."

"Oh!" Livia made no attempt to conceal her disappointment. "I hadn't thought of extra work," she said slowly. "No, thank you. I think I can do better for myself." She put on her hat, and held out her hand to him. 'Thank you," she said quietly, "You've been awfully kind." And then she turned to go. Bruce swung her around to face him.

"This is a good break for you. You must learn to act somewhere". She pulled her hand away and was icily polite.

"I know you've tried to help me. But that doesn't give you the right to be rude to me. Goodbye."

She was half-way down the street when she realized she had left her handbag in Bruce's bungalow. Without it she had no money and would have to walk home. There was nothing for her to do but go back and be as dignified as possible under the circumstances.

"So you've changed your mind?" Bruce said when she entered the bungalow. "I thought you had too much sense to act that way."

"My handbag—oh, there it is," said Livia. She walked to the door. Bruce caught her wrist with his uninjured hand. He brought her back into the room.

"Let me pass," she said with deceptive sweetness.

"Sit down." As she continued to stand, he pushed her firmly into the leather chair. "You're like the rest of them," he said without looking at her obstinate, sullen face. "You want things easy. You want things to fall into your lap without effort. Well, they don't—you've got to work for your privileges. Wise up on yourself—"

"Is the lecture finished?" she asked him crisply.

"I reckon so," he said slowly. Then I'll go." She stood up. But Bruce loomed above her.

"I'll see you again—I hope."

"I don't think so."

"I know so," and he drew her to him and kissed her. She struggled for a few seconds, then relaxed. He released her. "Now you can go."

She laughed. "But I don't want to."

He kissed her hair, her eyes, and the pink lobe of her ear. As she was about to speak, he kissed her lips again.

For a while she could not speak.

"I was only going to ask you the name of that director," she said.

DRAFT NEARS FAMILY HEAD

LA JUNTA, Col. —(U.P.)— Draft boards are scraping near the bottom of the manpower barrel in some sections of Colorado, Otero county officials announced that married men with children probably will be inducted into the army from the region shortly after the first of the year.

THEATERS

R. A. F. Thriller.

"Desperate Journey," Errol Flynn's new picture at the Ohio is a turn-about face from "The Invaders," the story of German agents who savagely cut their way across the Hudson Bay country after being stranded by a submarine. In Flynn's production the action concerns a quintet of R.A.F. men who, shot down in Germany, give the gestapo a merry chase until three of the group get back to Britain. The flyers take all sorts of chances from giving an enemy agent a hard right to the jaw to starting incendiary fires and creating general confusion. Ronald Reagan, Nancy Coleman, Raymond Massey and Alan Hale are in the supporting cast.

Stage Band.

The orchestra that broke all records at the Apollo theater in New York City when 21 mounties of the city police force were called out to stop the jitterbug demonstration in front of the theater appears on the Madison stage today. Charlie Barnet's band that is known for both the sweet and swing styles of music will be heard at four performances as will the featured entertainers including Rita Bradley, Huck Andrews, Cliff Leeman and Howard McGhee. The "sax sensation," as Barnet is known, has just finished a new picture, "Fifty Million Nickels," for which he wrote the theme. Lloyd Nolan's picture, "Just Off Broadway," headlines the screen bill. Tuesday and Wednesday, "My Sister Eileen," will be shown.

Spy Plot.

Story of a spy ring bent on destroying all essential service in Los Angeles through sabotage at a given signal is set forth in "Foreign Agent," the Ritz attraction. John Shelton plays the secret service agent who taps the source of a nation-wide fifth-column movement and the cast includes Gale Storm and Herbert Rawlinson. Lorothy Lamour is beautiful in technicolor in the second film, "Beyond the Blue Horizon," with Richard Denning, Jack Haley and Walter Abel.

Campus Film.

"Youth On Parade," the Park attraction, is a collegiate picture co-starring John Hubbard and Ruth Terry. George Murphy appears in the second attraction, "The Mayor of 44th Street." Anne Shirley is also featured.

CANDY POPULAR WITH SOLDIERS

Servicemen Still Like Sweets Just as They Did In Last War.

OKLAHOMA CITY —(U.P.)— It was candy then and it's candy now. The boys "over there" preferred candy in 1917 and they still have a sweet tooth in 1942.

Jerry Marker, parcel post department, was a postal employe during the last war and he has a keen memory, especially about the packages mailed to our soldiers and sailors during the yuletide season of '17.

"People still are sending candy but the kind and container has changed," he commented, "and, of course, it is condensed. In 1917 lots of chocolate candy went over the postal office desks in boxes but now regulations require that you only send hard candy in vacuum-sealed tins.

"I don't know whether the foreign candy makers put too little sugar in or what, but the boys surely do write home for sweets and hundreds of pounds of candy are going out marked 'Christmas package.'

"Watches were popular Christmas gifts in the last war and this one too, but the styles have changed. Last time they were pocket watches with chains and now they are wrist watches with fancy straps.

"There were no postal regulations before and now there are so many you must whittle the list of gifts to nothing. Before you could send a package as big as you liked and weighing anything short of 50 pounds. Now 11 pounds is the limit, with recommendations for six-pound packages.

"Airmail packages must be under two ounces which means only tie pins, razor blades, rings and handkerchiefs will be delivered by air.

"Favorites among soldiers and sailors then and now are cigarets, jewelry, chewing gum, stationery, soap, razor blades, cameras and film. Preferences new in this war are radios, Christmas cards and comic magazines. Gifts that are outdated are compasses, knee-length boot laces and pipes.

All gifts for overseas must be addressed to the army postoffice in New York for stations in the Atlantic and to San Francisco for bases in the Pacific.

Rooster Serves As Alarm Clock For Army Bugler

CAMP EDWARDS, Mass. —(INS)— Who wakes up the bugler who wakes up the men?

Well it's this way:

The Engineer Amphibian Command has a rooster called "The Ranger."

"The Ranger" rends the air with his raucous call every morning at the break of dawn.

Softened up by the clarion call, the soldiers fall easy prey to the bugle of the awakened instrumentalist.

"The Ranger" is no alarm clock. In fact he is always just one jump ahead of the frying pan. Too enthusiastic over his duties, he sometimes sounds off at—to say the least—undesirable hours.

On Page 1 of the paper each day you will find a list of the advertisements to be checked that day.

All you have to do is to decide each day which Large Ad, which Medium Ad and which Small Ad you think will do the advertiser the most good. Just write three names on this blank each day.

$750.00 in awards go to those readers whose selections are nearest to what the majority of readers think. Every week is a separate survey with a dozen or more cash awards each week.

Every member of any family may send in one answer each week and there are many awards each week, but only one award for a good answer will go to any one family in any one week.

I THINK THESE ADS WILL DO THE ADVERTISERS THE MOST GOOD.

EACH DAY OF THE WEEK ..... TO .....

	LARGE ADS	MEDIUM ADS	SMALL ADS
Sun.
Mon.
Tues.
Wed.
Thurs.
Fri.
Sat.

You are NOT required to write a letter to receive an award.

The awards are decided on the selections above. We would really appreciate it, though, if you would write a note saying what you DO NOT LIKE and . . . also . . . WHY YOU LIKED some of the good ads.

We sincerely want your suggestions and ideas of how we may improve our advertising service for your benefit. Write your letter in your own way! It's the thoughts and suggestions that matter. You are not being "judged" by your letters. Actually they have nothing to do with the awards . . . but . . . they will be helpful by giving additional information to our merchants.

Your criticisms and suggestions will be given to the merchants to help them to improve their advertisements BUT the merchants will NOT be given the names of those who write the letters. This is so you may say just what you really think without embarrassment.

PAM—Morning. By A. W. Brewerton

DIDN'T SEE ANYTHING OF ANNA THIS MORNING / GUESS I'LL GO BACK TO MY ROOM 'FORE I START JOB HUNTING
HOPE I DIDN'T MISS HER WHILE I WAS AT BREAKFAST.
DAVID SAYS SHE DOESN'T GO ON DUTY TILL ELEVEN O'CLOCK
UMM-M! COFFEE! SOMEONE FIXING BREAKFAST IN THAT ROOM!
TEN MINUTES LATER, AS PAM CAME DOWN THE STAIRS AGAIN, SHE GLANCED INTO THE SITTING ROOM
MAYBE IT'S ANNA. I HEAR SOMEONE MOVING AROUND!
OHO! THERE'S A BLONDE GIRL IN THERE NOW - THINK I'LL GO IN!

PASADENA, Cal — (U.P.) — A letter received by Mrs Amber McQuilling from her son, Corp. Robert McQuilling, taken prisoner at Wake Island, and now being held prisoner at the Shanghai war prisoners' camp in Central China, gives evidence, she believes, of having been given a "shot in the arm" for her benefit by his captors.

He states he is doing garden work for the prison camp and is finding it "very interesting and instructive."

SCRAP METAL PROBLEM NOT YET SOLVED

Steel Magazine Warns That Larger Supply Needed To Keep Mills Going.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Fractional advances were attached to most stock market leaders in today's early proceedings.

Ahead at a fairly active opening were Bethlehem, American Telephone, International Harvester, Consolidated Edison, Kennecott, Goodyear and U. S. Rubber.

Owners of steel shares noted the warning of the magazine "Steel" that "despite the generous outpouring of scrap in the recent salvage drive, and the continued effort to draw out dormant material from industrial and other sources, the scrap problem has not been solved."

Glamour---Under Arctic Sun

When U. S. army nurses received assignments in Iceland, a good number resigned themselves to getting along with just the barest necessities of life. It was quite a pleasant surprise on arrival to find that the country had its share of modern towns—and beauty parlors. Second Lieut. Lillian Goodwin is getting a finger wave in one of the beauty shops while other nurses watch. This is an official U. S. Signal Corps photo.

SEEK APPROVAL

City Officials in Columbus To Get O. K. on Sewer.

City Service Director Fred B. Wolff and Engineer W. C. Statler were in Columbus today seeking approval by the state health department of plans to construct an interceptor sewer in the southern section of the city to relieve the over-taxed eight-inch sanitary sewer on South Main street.

Several members of council have expressed the thought that any contemplated construction should include relief of East Raleigh avenue conditions under which live septic sewage is backing up into home basements.

Statler said this morning that the addition of sewer service to scores of new homes in the southern area of the city places too heavy a load on the present structure.

ALICE BACK ON STUDIO STAGES

Blond Star Returns After Leave To Have Baby.

HOLLYWOOD — (U.P.) — Alice Faye, blond singing star, returned to her film career today after a year's leave of absence to have a child.

Miss Faye, wife of Bandleader Phil Harris, was welcomed on the set of "Hello, Frisco, Hello," at 20th Century-Fox by Actors John Payne, Tyrone Power, Cesar Romero, George Montgomery, Laird Cregar and others who have appeared in films with her.

Before the party was finished, it turned into a farewell affair for Payne, Power and Romero, who have enlisted in the armed services.

Miss Faye's daughter, Alice Faye Harris, Jr., is now nearly six months old.

What the Home Folks Say
"Editorial from the Coshocton Tribune of October 30, 1942."

FOR CONGRESS
McGregor

J. Harry McGregor, the first Coshocton county man elected to congress in some 40 years, has proven himself a worthy representative of the 17th district in his first full term. He deserves another term.

Before Pearl Harbor, Mr. McGregor consistently voted for all measures to prepare America for war. It is true that he opposed those congressional forces which were seeking to rush the nation into war.

America certainly was inadequately prepared for war when we were attacked last December. Pearl Harbor and Bataan demonstrated that. How much worse would have been our plight had we gone to war at an even earlier date?

Which was of greater service to his country—the war-mongering congressman who was demanding that we get into the conflict at once, or the congressman who was insisting that we keep out as long as possible while building our armed strength to the maximum?

J. Harry McGregor was the latter type of congressman. Since Pearl Harbor as before, he has voted for measures to build our army and navy, to construct ships, planes and tanks as rapidly as possible.

While supporting war expenditures totaling billions, he has opposed graft and boondoggling. If this stand makes him an "Isolationist" then we submit America needs more of them in congress.

No one disputes that to win the war, America must be taxed as never before. But this also makes it imperative that waste and useless spending must be eliminated.

No one should get rich out of this war—whether he's a manufacturer, farmer or skilled worker. It's the patriotic duty of congress to guard now, as never before, against waste, bloated profits and bloated wages.

J. Harry McGregor will support his president and his country in every legitimate war expenditure. But he's no rubber stamp. He'll be vigilant of fiscal matters in the future as he has in the past.

NUDGE UP YOUR LIVER BILE WITH EVERITE
(Formerly Known as Liverine)
The Liver Has Two Important Secretions:
The Liver Has Five Important Functions:
1. Acts as Storehouse of Bile for Energy Foods.
2. Aids Digestion and Elimination.
3. Prepares Poisonous Waste for Elimination by Kidneys.
4. Destroys Decay Bacteria in Bowls.
5. Helps Bowels to act. If Liver becomes sluggish and fails to produce necessary flow of the Healthy Bile it may tend to slow up the five important duties of the Liver. EVERITE may help you. Take as directed on label.

DEWEY FAVORED TO CAPTURE NEW YORK ELECTION

Roosevelt and Farley Prestige at Stake Tomorrow In Governor Contest.

(By International News Service)

NEW YORK — Thomas E. Dewey, Republican, was a top-heavy favorite today to be elected governor of New York tomorrow in his hotly-contested race against John J. Bennett, Democrat, and Dean Alfange, nominee of the American Labor party.

Dewey's election would make political history. It would mean that President Roosevelt's home state is to have a Republican governor for the first time in 20 years.

It would have the effect of spotlighting Dewey as an outstanding G. O. P. possibility for the 1944 presidential race, Wendell L. Willkie notwithstanding.

It would be a severe blow to the political prestige of James A. Farley, Democratic state chairman, who sponsored Bennett from the outset.

In some quarters, the election of Dewey would even be construed as a setback of President Roosevelt who, somewhat belatedly, gave his allout endorsement of Bennett. Originally, however, the president wanted the Democrats to nominate Senator James M. Mead for governor instead of Bennett.

Dewey's election by a pluarity of 600,000 votes was predicted by Herbert Brownell, Jr., Republican campaign manager, in his final estimate.

Bennett's election by 150,000 was forecast by Vincent Dailey, Democratic state campaign manager and Farley's right hand man.

Farley's final guess was being awaited today. Last week he forecast a Bennett victory by about 85,000.

The concensus of unbiased political experts was that Dewey is "in"—that his victory may approach landslide proportions.

Estimates of the probable vote for Alfange, the American Labor party candidate, run from 200,000 to 400,000. The ALP four years ago cast 419,979 votes for Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, who defeated Dewey by the narrow margin of 64,394 votes. This year the ALP refused to support Bennett and put its own ticket in the field.

Messerschmitt Plane Attracts Crowd to Showroom.

Approximately 3,000 persons have visited the R. E Moorhead showroom, 37 Park avenue west, since 1 p. m. Saturday when the bullet-scared Messerschmitt warplane was first placed on exhibition there under the auspices of the Navy Mothers club and Naval Aid auxiliary.

The showroom will be open until 10 tonight and from 10 a. m. to 10 p. m. tomorrow, its final day here. Funds raised by the exhibition will be used for the benefit of navy men and their families.

A neatly painted series of white trophy stripes, each one beneath a miniature replica of allied aircraft insignia tell the graphic story of death dealt out by the plane. Two Dutch, three British and three French planes are known to have crumpled from its deadly fire. In addition to the pilot's "score" on the tail, a swastika emblem is also emblazoned on it and the numeral "five," designating its position in squadron formation.

DESERTER GOES ON TRIAL TODAY

Tells Reporters State Wastes Time and Money, Ought To Give Him Death.

(By Associated Press)

CHICAGO — Irwin Kadens, 33-year-old army deserter and "three state crime wave" was called to trial in criminal court today on a charge of robbery, but the defendant believed the law was wasting its time because it "could give me the death penalty for kidnaping under the Lindbergh law." His confessed field of operations included Ohio.

Kadens, who also faces a charge of rape and two other robbery charges, told reporters "it will cost the taxpayers $60,000 to conduct the case against me, and then they are just wasting their time. I shouldn't be tried for little things — like robberies and rapes—when they could give me the death penalty for kidnaping under the Lindbergh law, or for deserting the army during wartime."

The robbery charge is for his attempted holdup of a West Side currency exchange Oct. 19 which ended a spectacular criminal career that started when he deserted the army at Camp Grant, Ill., July 14. Police said he admitted between 50 and 75 robberies, a kidnaping, two rapes, and two attempts at rapes—most of them in Chicago.

He told reporters "I still think the army is a great place for a boy. It gives him good exercise, and a chance to serve his country. I never disgraced my uniform by wearing it when committing a crime."

EX-OHIO GRIDDER ADMITS HE INSPIRED 'PRAISE THE LORD'

(By Associated Press)

NEW CONCORD — A former Muskingum college football star was acclaimed by the nation today as the man who inspired America's popular battle cry of World war II—"Praise the Lord and pass the ammunition."

Lieut. Howell Forgy, a navy chaplain, acknowledged at Pearl Harbor over the week-end that he had uttered that now-famous phrase in pepping up sailors during the hellish moments of the surprise Japanese attack on the country's Pacific outpost last December.

Forgy, an All-Ohio-conference tackle on Muskingum's unbeaten, untied 1931 football team, said he used the words—since then put into a song that has swept the nation—as he slapped the sailors on the back.

The 34-year-old chaplain from Haddonfield, N. J., attended Muskingum college for four years, graduating in 1932. His wife, the former Louise Morgan of Princeton, Ky., presented him with a son, Michael, three weeks ago. The chaplain has not seen the boy.

Mrs. Maurice Forgy, the chaplain's mother, admitted at Haddonfield that "It's little confusing to find Howell on the front pages all of a sudden but now that I think of it that phrase is just like Howey, isn't it, Ruth?" she asked his younger sister.

Ruth nodded and smiled. "He's so witty and full of puns," she explained.

But despite the popularity of the song, the chaplain's parents said they had not heard the melody until after receiving the news that their son had used the slogan.

MEETS TONIGHT

Council Seeks To Speed Up Election Night Meeting.

As a means of shortening the election night session city council will meet today at 7:30 p. m., at the suggestion of Roy W. Vaughn, at-large member.

November's regular meeting tomorrow night cannot be legally postponed.

At tonight's caucus all matters in the council hopper will be discussed, including the pay increase application of the police department members. Their petition was filed several days ago. In this regard Russell Porch, First ward member of council, acted merely as "messenger" in transmitting the document and in nowise intended his action to influence other members of council, especially salary and finance committee members, he said today.

Under recently revived rules, however, each piece of legislation or other matter coming before council must have a sponsor named on it.

Lemert Raps Judge Who Ordered Disbarment Action.

ZANESVILLE —(AP)— A conspiracy to defeat him in Tuesday's election was charged by Judge Charles C. Lemert, seeking reelection to the fifth district appellate court, in an affidavit of prejudice against Common Pleas Court Judge P. H. Tannehill.

Judge Lemert, member of the court since 1926, asserted in the affidavit, which will be heard by Chief Justice Charles V. Weygandt of the Ohio supreme court, that a letter complaining of Lemert's administration of a guardianship fund contained false and libelous statements.

On the basis of the letter, Judge Tannehill ordered a disbarment action charging misconduct and unprofessional conduct filed against Judge Lemert. Lemert has until Nov. 28 to answer.

SUBMITS PLAN TO CUT DOWN 'MIGRATION

Calls For Absorption of Pa Increases Within Present Food Price Structure.

(By International News Service

WASHINGTON—Paul V. Mc Nutt, war manpower administrator, it was learned today, has proposed that farm workers' wage be stabilized at appreciably high er levels and that the increase costs be absorbed within the present price ceiling structure fo farm products.

McNutt, it was learned from a authoritative source, made his proposal before a meeting of the economic stabilization board last Fr day. His stand was supporte "vigorously" by Secretary of Agriculture Wickard, it was said.

The proposal touched off a heated discussion in the meeting and culminated in the withdrawal of Edward A. O'Neal, president of the American Farm Bureau federation, and a member of the board.

That the McNutt proposal is b ing given serious consideratio was indicated as it was learne that lawyers for Economic Stabilization Director Byrnes' organization are exploring legal mean of putting it into effect.

Under the recently-enacte price stabilization law, farm bl leaders succeeded in writing in the act a provision requiring i creased farm labor costs to b taken into consideration in settlin ceiling prices for farm product

McNutt, in bolstering his proposal, cited that the ratio o farm wages to national farm income in 1941 was the lowest in the last 30 years, despite the fact that 1941 was a comparatively prosperous year for the farmer.

The manpower head flatly de clared before the meeting that far mers "definitely can afford, an should be required," to pay farm workers more money as an induce ment to keep their employes fro migrating to war industries.

The McNutt plan had the effec of splitting farm organizatio leadership on the proposal, wit O'Neal strongly opposing the sug gestion and James Patton, head o the National Farmers' union, sup porting it.

O'Neal reportedly took the pos tion that farm wages should b stabilized at present levels, or increased should be accompanie by a parallel rise in ceiling price for farm products.

7 MORE ENEMY SHIPS SUNK BY AMERICAN SUBS

Three Others Damaged, One a Converted Carrier; List Jap Toll in Solomons.

day appeared to have the run of the waters around embattled Guadalcanal island as a result of the devastating battle of Oct. 26 in which the Japanese now are reported officially to have suffered damage to seven big ships.

In what the navy described as the first detailed report of the naval air battle east of the Stewart islands one week ago, the enemy also was reported to have lost between 100 and 150 planes.

Japanese warships listed as damaged in this action included two aircraft carriers, two battleships and three cruisers. This added one battleship and two heavy cruisers to the score previously reported.

Announced United States losses in the engagement were one carrier, as yet unidentified, and the destroyer Porter, with other ships reporting lesser damage.

As the battered Japanese armada retired from the scene, American warships swept into the area from which enemy vessels had bombarded the defenders of Guadalcanal and let go with a two-hour cannonading of Japanese positions on the island. Several buildings and boats and some artillery were destroyed by the shelling, which occurred last Friday.

Seven Grumman "Wildcats" paid another call on the enemy base at Rekata Bay, northwest of Guadalcanal, shooting down three "Zero" float planes and two biplanes and sending a fuel dump up in smoke.

Dive bombers attacked enemy destroyers in the vicinity of the Russel islands, about 30 miles northwest of Guadalcanal, Thursday night and again Friday morning with inconclusive results. One bomber failed to return.

It appeared that U. S. navy fliers had dealt the enemy a severe pounding.

A detailed report reached Admiral Ernest J. King, commander-in-chief of naval operations, only yesterday from Vice Admiral William Halsey, who recently took over command of that area.

In this report, the navy announced last night, the following damage to the enemy was detailed:

Four to six heavy bomb hits on an aircraft carrier of the Zui Kaku class.

Two medium bomb hits on another aircraft carrier of the same class.

Two heavy bomb hits on a battleship of the Kongo class.

One heavy bomb hit on a second battleship.

Five medium bomb hits on a cruiser of the Tikuma class (second class cruiser).

Torpedo and bomb hits on one heavy cruiser, and two torpedo hits on another heavy cruiser.

A dispatch from Olen W. Clements, Associated Press correspondent in the south Pacific war zone, quoted an American pilot returning from the attack as saying the flight deck of one of the big new enemy carriers was completely smashed and she appeared to be sinking.

Ashore on Guadalcanal, the navy reported "minor" ground operations Thursday during which U. S. soldiers and marines captured two enemy 75 mm. guns west of the Matanikau river, the defenders' western defense line.

Clements' dispatch related that the enemy forces suffered such heavy losses during their recent large-scale assaults that the marines described one action in this manner:

"The Japs attacked us and we suffered 85 casualties. Two thousand Jap bodies present a disposal problem."

Allied bombers meanwhile continued their methodical hammering at Japanese bases in the Solomon area, raiding Buin, on Bougainville island, and Faisi, a small island to the south, for the fourth consecutive day yesterday.

General MacArthur's Australian headquarters reported seven ships were believed to have been sunk or damaged.

Use P-40's As Dive-Bombers, Too

WITH AMERICAN AIR FORCES IN CHINA, Oct. 31.—(Delayed)—(AP)—American airmen flying shark-nosed P-40's, known hereabouts as "pea-shooters," introduced a new trick in their air warfare with a dive-bombing assault on Hongkong last Wednesday.

One big merchant ship was left in flames by a direct hit, and near-misses were scored against two others in this third raid within a week upon the Japanese-occupied British crown colony.

This dive-bombing assault was the first in this theater by the Curtiss P-40's, built originally as fighters but now become jacks of all trades in the hands of resourceful Americans.

"We are using them for about everything except submarines," Col. Robert L. Scott of Macon, Ga., a pursuit group commander, said.

Report Action On Three Chinese Fronts

CHUNGKING — (AP) — Minor fighting on three widely separated fronts was reported by the Chinese high command and the press today.

In the northwest, a Japanese detachment attacked near Paotow in Suiyuan province, but was beaten in a severe battle of several hours on Oct. 27, a communique said.

West of Nanchang in Kiangsi province in Central China a small Japanese detachment was repulsed in attacks on two points Oct. 28.

The Chinese Central news said that Japanese in Hupeh province yesterday attacked two Yangtze river towns, Shasi and Chenkokow, and that fighting was continuing near Panchangchiao.

GAS RATIONING BLANKS ARRIVE

though the owner may have someone else present it at the registration site.

In filling out the blank the owner is required to note the number of tires in his or her possession together with their serial numbers, and is limited to not more than one spare tire. The applicant also agrees to keep all tires in serviceable condition, have them inspected regularly and not to use them beyond the recapping point.

Speed will be controlled by each owner's compliance with his or her signed agreement not to drive in excess of 35 miles an hour.

Volunteer workers who will assist in special registrations and others desiring to volunteer, will meet in John Simpson Junior high school auditorium at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday to receive instruction from John P. Heile of the Cleveland OPA office. Public school teachers will meet for instruction at 4 p. m. tomorrow in the board of education offices.

All gasoline rationing matters will be handled by a new panel which was added to the county board last week and comprised of J. E. Spreng as chairman, E. S. Weller and T. R. Sammons.

Fuel oil and kerosene consumers who failed to register at the courthouse or elsewhere last week are directed to apply at rationing board offices, 43 North Mulberry street.

150 Soldiers In New Orleans Riot Put Under Arrest

NEW ORLEANS — (AP) — Approximately 150 Negro soldiers spent the night in police cells and were placed under military arrest here today after a riot last night over the arrest of one of their number by three police officers in a beer parlor.

The officers, thwarted in their attempt to arrest the soldier on a disorderly conduct charge in the South Rampart street beer place, sounded a riot call and extra city police, military police and members of the naval shore patrol converged on the scene and rounded up the rioters.

The soldier first arrested broke out of a police car and escaped and scores of soldiers and some civilians joined in a general fight to prevent the officers from arresting him. Several brisk clashes followed in which a number of the participants suffered minor bruises.

PLATINUM'S OUT

Precious Metal Goes to War, Jewelry Makers Suffer.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Fashionable or not, the platinum wedding ring is about out.

The war production board today prohibited the use of platinum in making jewelry. Platinum articles already manufactured may be sold.

Platinum is needed for a number of war purposes, such as the manufacture of nitric acid and radio tubes.

HOLLYWOOD — (U.P.) — Mary Martin, film and radio star, was ordered today to take a two-months' vacation for her health. She will go to Palm Springs upon completion of her current film assignment.

What 'Commandos' Fight For

(Editor's Note: This is the fifth of a series of articles on the agencies participating in funds collected in the Community War Chest campaign in Mansfield and Richland county. Each of the articles will deal with one Community Fund organization at home, and one War Chest agency. A "Commando" army of 500 starts Nov. 9 on its objective of raising $140,377.)

Boy Scouts.

One of the leading character-building agencies embraced in the Community War Chest is the Boy Scouts which is budgeted to receive $6,280.

More than 4,000 persons have "graduated" from the Mansfield program and there are now 952 scouts in the city's present troops.

The Boy Scout organization performs what is perhaps the most outstanding community service program in the city. Scouts are enlisted to carry out scores of community tasks during the year and they have failed in none of them.

Each scout is given a two-hour training period each week in citizenship. The scout program teaches discipline and carries out an honor system designed to awaken a sense of responsibility not only to their community, their fellow citizens, but to themselves.

A total of 223 Mansfield men and women give volunteer service to the scout program throughout the year.

Russian War Relief.

Help in almost unlimited quantities is needed in Russia which has shouldered the burden of the European war so far.

Mansfield and Richland county is asked to raise $3,691 toward a nation-wide fund for the benefit of the Russians.

The national goal is $5,500,000 and practically all of the money will be spent in the United States for the purchase of medical and surgical supplies and drugs for use by both soldiers and civilians in the war-torn sectors of Russia. No money is sent to Russia but the curative aids and woolen clothing are distributed by Russian agencies.

Every light pole in the down town area will carry the War Chest message; tags will be found on parking meters and on the doors leading into every Mansfield store; 20 trucks will display War Chest posters; folders will be distributed in churches next Sunday and next Friday and Saturday Boy Scouts will deliver War Chest pamphlets into every Mansfield home.

The Commando offensive opens next Monday and leaders are hopeful that a three-day "blitzkreig" will be sufficient to reach the objective. First report session is set for Armistice Day night following the parade at Central park. An appropriate program is being arranged for that time.

the bleacher crowd yesterday afternoon and later she applied chemicals to a spitting and sputtering fire bomb at the request of the school officials.

Major W. L. Gilliland, executive officer of the school, won applause when he unearthed a one-pound nitro-starch explosive bomb which had failed to explode. After the detonator had been replaced the innocent-looking little missle tore a desk-size crater in the pole-vaulting course in the stadium.

In private life Major Gilliland is professor of organic chemistry at the University of Maine and holds a doctor's degree from Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Gas lectures and drills were in charge of Captain Moreland M. Humphreys, a member of the Denver bar and a graduate of Harvard Law school. Plant protection lectures and demonstrations were headed by Lieutenant Calvin Banigan of the University of Nevada who is a consulting chemist at the nation's capital.

Captain Francis Woodruff lectured on sabotage and other phases of civilian defense. In civil life he has served as commandant of the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors Orphans home at Xenia.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger and Captain LeRoy Zimmerman headed a detachment of city firemen who assisted in the incendiary demonstrations.

Judge Kalbfleisch today extended, in behalf of the Civilian Defense council, thanks to the telephone company, The News-Journal, the board of education and Superintendent W. L. Girl Gives Up Favorite Doll In Rubber Salvage Drive.

DENVER — (INS) — Betty Ann Standefer, 10, of Oil Center, N. M., had a letter of praise today for her patriotism in sacrificing her favorite two-pound rubber doll to the New Mexico salvage heap. Tied to the neck of the doll was a tag which said:

"Goodby Ann, go whip Japan."

That brought the letter of commendation from L. J. Todhunter, regional WPB salvage director in Denver.

LIGHT VOTING INDICATED FOR ELECTION DAY

State Vote To Be Less Than Two Million; Expect 26,000 For City, County.

polls late in the afternon. Housewives and retired men were asked to vote between 10 a. m. and 3 p. m.

Richland countians will elect a county auditor, and commissioner, common pleas judge, and state representative, besides balloting on state senator, two congressional, five state offices, and four state and district court contests and a proposed amendment to the Ohio constitution.

The Richland election board had sent out 350 absentee ballots today, a few more than in 1938, and was distributing ballots and election supplies to the city's voting places. Supplies went to districts outside Mansfield Saturday.

Approximately 26,000 Richland countians are expected to cast ballots tomorrow, about 70 per cent of the total vote in 1940, heaviest on record. Election board clerks predicted 14,000 Mansfielders will vote.

Candidates in the Richland county contests which have been unusually free from bitterness and mud-slinging are Norman L. Wolfe, Democrat, and Alden H. Heath, Republican, for county auditor; C. L. Mitchell, Democrat, and C. L. Shoup, Republican, for county commissioner, and Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston and Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch for common pleas judge. The two candidates for judge are on a non-partisan ballot. Judge Huston, however, is a Democrat and Judge Kalbfleisch a Republican.

Auditor Wolfe and County Commissioner Mitchell are seeking re-election as is Judge Huston. Also a candidate for re-election is Representative John L. Catlett, Republican, who is opposed by Ralph C. Lutz, Lexington Democrat, a former representative.

A close race for the 17th district congressional post has been predicted between Congressman J. Harry McGregor, Republican candidate for re-election, and Samuel A. Anderson, Democratic service director at Newark. With C. I. O. union backing Anderson has waged an aggressive campaign, accusing McGregor of failing to cooperate with the president in the war program and voting against defense measures before Pearl Harbor.

State Senator P. H. Rogers of Grafton, Republican serving the 27-29th district which includes Richland county, has no opposition, only unopposed candidate on the ballot.

There's another district contest between Judge Charles C. Lemert of Zanesville, and Judge Robert B. Putnam of Millersburg for the Fifth district appeals court post. Judge Lemert is the Democratic incumbent. Judge Putnam is a Republican, now common pleas judge in Holmes county.

Heading the state ticket are Gov. John W. Bricker, G.O.P. nominee for re-election, and John McSweeney, former Wooster congressman, his Democratic opponent. Their campaign has been waged primarily on two points, the state surplus and Ohio's cooperation in the war effort.

Gov. Bricker has contended that the $20,000,000 surplus will be valuable when tax revenue drops sharply while McSweeney charged it was built up by withholding funds from local subdivisions.

McSweeney charged that the state administration has made a "joke" of civilian defense while the governor contends Ohio is one of the leading states in the war effort.

State CIO President Jack Kroll in a radio address yesterday asked for the election of McSweeney, to put a "man in the statehouse who will cooperate with the man in the White House."

In addition to the governor, three Republicans and one Democrat are seeking re-election to state offices. Republicans are Lieut. Gov. Paul M. Herbert, State Treasurer Don Ebright, and Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert. The Democrat is Secretary of State John Sweeney, whose opponent is Edward J. Hummel.

Democratic candidates are George D. Nye for lieutenant governor, Robert S. Cox for state treasurer, and Herbert S. Duffy for attorney general.

All Ohioans will vote in the congressman-at-large race in which Congressman Stephen M. Young, Democrat, and George H. Bender, Republican, both of Cleveland, are the candidates. The state will have only one congressman-at-large during the next two years so one of the incumbents will be defeated.

David C. Haney, Struthers, arrested on the charge of speeding on U. S. Route 42 Sunday evening was taken to Ashland police court where he posted $16 bond and signed a waiver. Nov. 5 is the date set for Harold S. Coe's hearing in the Ashland court. Coe from Akron was cited to appear following his arrest for speeding by state highway patrolmen.

A reckless driving charge was filed by patrolmen against Farrell W. Townsell, Cleveland, who will appear in Ashland police court Nov. 4, after posting a $25 bond Sunday night.

Thomas B. Jacobs, 28 Clairmont street, was arrested Sunday evening by Motorcycle Patrolman Robert Robnolte after his truck had skidded 38 feet before crashing into autos driven by Frank Doner, 342 East Fourth street and Victor H. Bachman, Ashland, on West Fourth street. Jacobs will be arraigned in municipal court on the charge of unsafe operation.

George Daum, 140 South Adams street, was arrested early Sunday by Lieut. Eugene Hartnett and Patrolman Earl Korn on the charge of driving an auto on East Third street while under the influence of alcohol.

Cited to answer a similar charge when the same police cruiser crew sighted his car weaving along Orange street early yesterday, is Paul Dickson, 258 Wood street. His companion, Leo Harrington, was arrested on an intoxication charge.

Cars driven by Mrs. Martha Mertler, 228 Richland avenue, and E. R. Hartman, 121 Marion avenue, were damaged in a collision at South Mulberry street and Luther place.

also at her back door in the Asia Minor part of the Middle East.

President Ismet Inonu told the Turkish parliament yesterday that "Turke, is closer to war today than at any time since the present conflict started."

Inonu pledged Turkey to fulfillment of her alliances which include a treaty with Britain and an amity peace with Germany. In addition, Russia, in 1941, pledged aid to Turkey if Germany attacked her.

To the northeast, where snow was piled high on the plateaus and in the passes of the Caucasus range, the Red army was engaged in a struggle to keep the Germans away from military routes debouching at Tiflis and Kutaisi.

To the south of Turkey, across the eastern end of the Mediterranean, the British eighth army's offensive on the northern flank of Marshal Rommel's African corps had achieved a breakthrough of which Rommel himself would have been proud.

Not only were some of his troops caught between the coastal railway and the sea but his whole left, or northern, flank was endangered.

Behind and over the desert fighting zone and at the Axis island base of Crete the Allied aerial offensive continued without let-up. Two enemy cargo ships were bombed and sunk yesterday when torpedo planes surprised them entering harbor at Tobruk, Libya, after a Mediterranean voyage.

With the Germans stopped at Stalingrad—actually thrown back in some sectors of that wrecked Volga city—the real battle of Russia seemed to have shifted to the mountainous theater of the deep Caucasus.

The Germans claimed capture of Alagir, about 25 miles northwest of Ordzhonikidze, head of one military highway winding through the snowbound Caucasian peaks. The Germans also reported further progress in their drive toward Tuapse, provisional base of the Russian Black sea fleet.

The air war in western Europe was in the doldrums, following Saturday's heavy German attack on Canterbury, but the British admiralty reported a small German supply ship set afire and another left sinking after a naval attack by a British patrol yesterday morning.

American Planes Blast Axis Base

CAIRO — (AP) — United States heavy bombers have carried out a destructive attack on the Axis air base at Maleme in Crete, American headquarters announced today.

A communique said fires were started and explosions were noted in the target area.

United States fighters, flying as top cover for Allied fighter-bombers, broke up a formation of Messerschmitts in a dog fight over the Egyptian battle area, the communique said.

Here's a new month and new bonds to buy in it.

Hitler has neatly solved the German people's voting problem. He carries all their votes around with him.

Heavy Losses In Battle of Pacific

ANNOUNCEMENT of the loss of another aircraft carrier in the battle of the Pacific cannot fail to have a disturbing effect in this country as it is realized that the enemy has thus disposed of more than half of the carriers we have had in action in the Far East.

News that other carriers are "on order," or in process of production, does not solve the immediate problem of successfully coping with the Japanese, although it further reveals the unpreparedness of the United States for such fighting as Japan has been doing.

It is obvious, as matters stand, that the United Nations are not yet winning the war in the Pacific. The Japanese still hold the vast areas they have seized and threaten further advances. While there has been a few days lull in the Battle of the Solomons, resumption of enemy attack in increased force is anticipated, with American troops on Guadalcanal at a disadvantage in numerical strength and supply lines.

Shipping losses and destruction of aircraft carriers are big handicaps, and while more Japanese than American ships and planes have been destroyed or damaged the importance of warships lost by our side is at least as great as that of the Japs, and American fleet commanders hesitate to take chances that could be boldly taken if they were sure of superior power.

It is now evident that any Americans who thought the Pacific war would result in quick, easy victory were greatly mistaken. But it would be an even greater mistake to regard the present situation in the Far East as hopeless, for the full measure of fighting power of the United States, and its associates of the United Nations, has not yet been demonstrated—nor has the effectiveness of a united command in that area been tested.

Neglected Cars Wear Out Fast

A CHECK-UP in some industrial areas finds "appalling abuse of automobile tires." Half of the war workers, they report, carry much less air in their tires than there should be, and only one-fourth of them are fully inflated. Soft tires, of course, wear out fast. Moreover, a large part of the tires are worn very thin, and "running on the carcass" instead of being recapped for new usefulness. Obviously the owners of such cars, in the natural course of events, will soon be "running on their rims." Cuts and bruises are seldom cared for properly, and one car out of ten has faulty wheel alignment.

Such carelessness is held to be inexcusable and those who let their cars run down from lack of proper care may be deprived of gasoline rations.

Many factory workmen, perhaps, buy old cars to drive to work, and regard them merely as transportation, and so have little pride in them. But this is a time when every car capable of service, no matter what it is used for, should be regarded as a public trust and kept in as good condition as possible.

Hitler Covets French Ships

AT THE FALL of France, some of its fleet lay in French harbors. Some of it lay at Dakar and other colonial points, Martinique, for instance. Hitler long has wanted to get his hands on those ships, but Marshal Petain was able to hold him off. Laval has no moral or patriotic inhibitions. Darlan appears to play the Hitler game. Hitler thinks now he can get the ships.

It makes a great difference to both sides who has them. If Hitler can add them to an active navy, they will be a great asset. If they can be held inactive, as they have been so far, their menace to the Allies is removed. If the United Nations could take them over that would be a great gain, but such possibility seems out of the question in the near future.

The B. B. C. recently broadcast that Hitler had sent an ultimatum to Laval, demanding the surrender of all merchant ships, French or foreign, now in French harbors. If he gets these, he will be after the naval shipping next.

The French do not like these demands. Unarmed, they have been helpless. Now assistance is drifting in, so far a mere trickle. Their day is coming, however. Hitler knows it. That's why he is in haste about French ships.

Tribute Is Paid to the 'Doughboy'

GENERAL DOUGLAS MACARTHUR revived a notable piece of eloquence when, for a celebration of the 25th anniversary of the appearance of the first "doughboy" in World war I, he cabled from Australia to New York this famous tribute:

> "He plods and groans, sweats and toils, he howls and curses, and at the end dies unknown, uncomplaining, with faith in his heart and on his lips a prayer for victory. From time immemorial the victor in war has been symbolized by the foot soldier, he who with a steel weapon in his hand challenges his enemy to have and to hold a square yard of mud-covered ground. He is affectionately called in our army the 'Doughboy.' He passes on in anonymity except for his loved ones; but for those who know, we revere and bless the name of Doughboy."

They don't seem to use the word "Doughboys" now. Hasn't some other pungent term arisen to take its place, in the epic that is taking form in this present war? Especially in the vast, incredible theater of adventure that has developed in the western Pacific, around the Philippines and the Solomon Islands?

The heroes of W. L. White's great book, "They Were Expendable," surely deserve some fit name by which they can be remembered forever.

Cowardice Explains Draft Delay

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON — It seems to most observers that the restrictive amendments on the bill permitting the drafting of 18 and 19 year old boys are based on pure politics, so far as the congressmen voting for them are concerned, and muddy thinking, so far as the people of whom these congressmen are afraid are concerned.

Everybody knows what the congressmen voting for such amendments fear—they fear the votes of the mothers of these 18 and 19 year old boys. Obviously the boys themselves cannot vote. There has been some talk on Capitol Hill of possible resentment by the wives of older men, who would be drafted if the younger men were not. But this is decidedly more nebulous.

The resentment of a mother of an 18-year-old boy is much more apt to flare into a vote against a congressman's re-election than any comparable feeling on the part of a wife. Actually the connection between her husband being drafted and this vote on the teen age levy is direct, but it probably does not seem so to more than a small percentage of the wives affected.

THE REALLY interesting point here, however, is not political cowardice on Capitol Hill. That is so common, and so essentially a part of democratic government, that it goes without saying. Nor is this meant at all in pure criticism. The Founding Fathers INTENDED to create political cowardice in congress. That, in a way of speaking, is a normal and admirable function of congress. For only through fear of the electorate on the part of the legislating body can we have the popular will translate itself into action.

But, like many other good things, political cowardice does not arouse any enthusiasm among the beholders. And in wartime it becomes so objectionable that we find some disgusted folks advocating dictatorship, while others bewail the "blackout" of congress.

The point which interests most of us is not, therefore, this evidence of regard for opinion back home on the part of congressmen, but WHY the folks back home feel as they do. That is where this muddy thinking, as many of us feel it is, comes in.

NATURALLY the mother's reaction is: What a terrible thing for a boy who ought to be in school, a mere child of 18 or 19, to be marched off to his death. The answer to that is of course: "Yes."

But it's also pretty terrible for the young father of two children, with them and a wife dependent on him for love and affection if not for financial aid, to be marched off to his death. Obviously the war must be fought by comparatively young men. The graybeards may be pretty good armchair strategists, but they would not stand up long under the hardships of warfare.

The top men in the army believe firmly that the war could be shortened by the use of teen age boys. Whether right or wrong about this, all wars, including notably our own Civil war, have been fought by boys in their teens. Now suppose that the war is prolonged for three or four years because we did not take the best fighting men. What will happen? Obviously many more lives will be lost, much more suffering will be assured, and the boys who would be drafted now will have reached the twenties and be marched off to face a much more critical situation.

So in a way, these sops to sentiment are only putting off the evil day!

Should Youth Vote?

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

SENATOR ARTHUR H. VANDENBERG of Michigan has crashed this 18-19-year draft controversy with a question which is mightily pertinent to every thoughtful American family. Says he:

If boys are to be sent to fight for their country, why should they not be given the right to vote in the land for which they must suffer . . . for which they may die?

And I, for one, vote 100 per cent for Senator Vandenberg's stand. Nor do I vote through sentimental prejudice or ignorant emotion. I vote that way because of my familiarity with the expressed opinion of thousands of young Americans who write to me. Those letters are something to make every citizen pause. They are shrewd and considered. They show a grasp of our current problems which is far in advance of the average adult. They reveal a dignity and awareness, a definite aim and desire, of which we did not dream at their age.

"But that's nonsense," you may say. "I didn't vote when I was 19. No 18 or 19-year-old youngster knows enough about the world and its problems to be able to vote."

Back up, brother, and ease your collar. It is true you didn't vote when you were 19. But when you try to compare your mental development at 19 with the maturity of Young America's today, you have a lot to learn.

No, I'm not saying that modern Young America is either 100 per cent ripe or responsible. In many ways, the youngsters of today know less of actual, practical Hard Breaks than you or I knew at their age. But they have had opportunities you and I never had. They have faced social problems which were closed books to you and me. They have learned answers, through the movies, the magazines, radios and their daily experience which we had no chance to learn.

They may be, and often are, more selfish than we were allowed to be . . . more rambunctious . . . but that doesn't mean that we didn't want to equal or excel their record in cussedness. You may rage, Dad, because your 16-year-old Pride 'n' Joy plasters her face with cosmetics. But I remember—and acutely—when I, at the same age, darkened by non-existent eyelashes with burned matches and applied wet, red crepe paper to my cheeks. And was soundly smacked for the performance. (And I bet Mom remembers the same.)

Young America of today has no cussed impulse which we did not share. But we lacked modern opportunities to express ourselves. There were few automobiles in our teen age, few phones or radios. No juke box joints. And, let it be noted, no juke box parents or cocktail bar elders who left us to our own devices of an evening. If it were only to separate them from such parents, teen-age induction might be one of our most civilized expedients.

Yes, Young Americans of the teen age are a handful. Many of them are, when home, as selfish, lazy, irresponsible and reckless young cubs as were ever whelped. But ask the far ends of the earth how they have stood up under the agony of Bataan . . . the torture of the Egyptian ordeal . . . the weary strangeness of the Australian campaign . . . the deadly challenge of Jimmy Doolittle's raid on Tokyo. Ask Germany what "American kids" are doing today with their Flying Fortresses!

THEY'RE PERFORMING! PERFORMING PLUS! AND IF WE CAN SEND THEM OUT ON SUCH A DEADLY BUSINESS, WE SHOULD AT LEAST BESTOW UPON THEM THE PROUD ACCOLADE OF CITIZENSHIP BEFORE THEY GO!

IF A BOY IS FIT TO DIE FOR HIS COUNTRY, HE IS FIT TO LIVE FOR THAT COUNTRY IN EVERY SENSE! AND ANY GRATEFUL PEOPLE SHOULD GRANT HIM SUCH HONOR!

Timely Editorial

Job Plan Falls Short.

The manpower program this country needs is a program that will place and hold the nation's supply of workers where they are most needed and best can serve. It must be an over-all program adequately supported by authority. No other kind of program can succeed, whether it is held back for political or other reasons.

The latest step with regard to farm labor falls short of such a program. It is certain to be ineffective on that account. It undertakes to keep dairy, livestock and poultry farm workers in their present jobs by means of draft deferment and no recruiting, by attempts to prevent their employment in war plants or other jobs and by attempts at farm wage "stabilization."

The solution comes back to a universal manpower program, affecting all employment and backed by adequate authority. It could and should be fully integrated with draft policies.—Kansas City Star.

Interpreting the War News

Axis Stimulant to Morale Seen In Many False Victory Claims

—By ALVIN J. STEINKOPF

THE GERMAN high command announcement that U-boats in the North Atlantic had attacked a fully-laden convoy on its way to Britain, "sinking nine ships totalling 68,500 tons," has a familiar ring to persons who get themselves into a critical state of mind before reading Axis reports.

The announcement sounds suspiciously like that late-in-week stimulant to German morale which the shrewd propagandists of the Wilhelmstrasse often find necessary on Thursdays, Fridays and Saturdays.

One consideration prompting the cautious reader to regard such reports suspiciously is, of course, the record of proved exaggerations in Berlin and Rome recently.

But the sprightly victory in the fag end of the week is a well established device in German war reporting. It is based on the studies of psychologists who helped to plan the war. Their investigations have revealed that fluctuating German morale sags toward the end of a week.

Earlier in the war it was comparatively simple. Usually there were enough legitimate victories to keep morale afloat.

Recently, however, the emotional lows haven't been overcome so readily. No one in Germany can see the end of the war which was supposed to be over so quickly.

Some German psychologists have held out for a fine communique on Sunday, but it appears that recently the better thought has been that on Sunday the German has enough other diversions to take care of his morale.

Perhaps the most categorical and complete denial of a wishful German communique yet to be issued was dictated by Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Late in September the Axis spread official reports that "several large ocean-going liners heavily laden with American troops" had been torpedoed. The commander of United States army forces in Europe waited three weeks and then, in a formal statement, said:

"These claims are completely unfounded, and are merely another example of the untrustworthiness of Axis reports."

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

WASHINGTON—There are so many obstacles in the way of that so-called "labor peace" that many concerned will pass snap judgment that it can't happen here. But off-the-record observers within the labor movement and without are almost unanimous: A consolidation of the CIO and AFL, with practically all independent unions except the United Mine Workers (John L. Lewis) stringing along, may happen any day now.

* * *

FOR the moment, let's not consider the obstacles. They have been recited before in this report and others. The reasons for consolidation are:

(1) The war, with its attendant manpower and wage-control legislation, has taken away from warring labor factions the weapons with which they fought each other.

(2) Labor's most potent weapons for maintaining the gains they have made and righting wrongs that still exist are: (a) Labor leaders who hold key jobs in Washington, such as those on the War Labor Board, in the Manpower commission, and in the Department of Labor; and (b) the Washington Labor lobby.

(3) Most of the AFL and several groups in the CIO have been waiting for a long time to catch John L. Lewis far enough off base to put him out.

Under the heading of (1) comes the fact that both William Green (AFL) and Philip Murray (CIO) have pledged no strikes for the duration. While this has not yet become an accomplished fact, those pledges eliminate sanctioned jurisdictional strikes, as well as those involving wages, hours, and working conditions.

PUBLIC opinion is also a vital factor in this matter of strikes and operates importantly against demands for excessive wages and shorter hours.

These things force labor to look for (2) representatives in the war government and an influential lobby that can make itself felt whenever labor legislation is in the offing. In both cases, a split labor movement defeats its main objective and the old saw, "In union there is strength," becomes too apparent to need further elucidation.

From the very first defense move, the administration has given labor its representatives within and has shown an inclination to listen to the voices of labor without. It is only when those "voices without" have been in discord that labor has lost ground.

There is no need here to go further into (3). Lewis and his battles with the AFL and more recently with his own original CIO are pretty well known. It is sufficient to point out that Lewis gained most of his original strength from his "stand-in" with the administration. He gave that up when he opposed Roosevelt for the third term.

Man About Manhattan

Broadway Pilgrimage

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—Concerning wanderings along Broadway:

This night to the moving pictures, to see Humphrey Bogart and Mary Astor in their "Across the Pacific," which thrills me mightily but does not leave the same fervor aroused by "The Maltese Falcon." But, I reflect, it has Mary Astor, beautiful as ever.

Then off to mingle with those on the street, and to pause in front of a popcorn stand, realizing that sixteen times have I passed this stand, sniffing the delectable odors of butter and syrup. This time I weaken and reach for my purse. Happily munching the confection, I resume my course, to be accosted on the corner by a tout for a sight-seeing bus who evidently has taken me for a pilgrim.

I pause in front of a show window, thinking how well I would look in the sporting clothes displayed, but where would I wear them? And then I become intrigued by a shooting gallery abutting the sidewalk, where one may fire nine shots from a .22 caliber firearm at revolving targets, at the expense of twenty-five cents. But my box of molasses popcorn is still half full and my fingers are sticky, so I regretfully pass on to another corner.

THERE I flatten my nose against the window of a new seafood restaurant, designed prettily in the manner of a ship, with pilot's wheels for backs of chairs, and other nautical appurtenances. No charming odors emanate, however, and I reflect that business within probably will become better when some of the newness has worn off and a few odd scallops have ripened under the counter.

I pop another handful of the delicious confection into my mouth, and contemplate the vast amount which remains within the box, and find that it is becoming tiring both as to taste and texture.

THEN I am intrigued by three sailor boys with "Belgium" imprinted on their shoulders, and follow them into another shooting arcade where one may aim beams of light at comical targets which whirl and gyrate, at the outlay of only two coppers. I try to make one of these guns work, wounding my finger so that it bleeds.

My finger seems to require attention, so I detour to the convenient apartment of a friend, who applies iodine and introduces me to his guest, a handsome lieutenant in the air corps. The talk is of the war and ocean submarine patrols until I decide it is time to seek my couch. And on the street I am confronted with an old apparition in long beard and frontier costume, carrying a flintlock, and wonder what he is advertising. Then to the subway, my stomach complaining. On the eighteenth time I shall again pass the popcorn stand, odors or no.

Health and Diet

Guarding Health of Aviators.

—By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

MORE and more we are coming to realize that air power is to be the decisive factor in winning the war. With this in mind we are beginning to train boys of sixteen years in high school in the principles of aviation. The potential number of fliers which we will eventually have in service has not even been estimated.

It is probably not generally appreciated that at least fifty per cent of the technical problems which go to make these aviators efficient are medical problems. The aviator has nothing more than one human body, no matter how superior it may be to the average body of his fellow creatures. That body must in the space of a short time, during flight, endure changes of altitude for which the hardiest mountain climber of a generation age took days or weeks of acclimatization.

Enduring Altitudes.

The oxygen saturation of the blood is the important factor in standing altitudes, and the oxygen saturation of the blood is affected by carbon monoxide, and air fields are filled with carbon monoxide gas all the time. Right away the medical officer comes into the picture.

The aviator on duty must be continually working out mathematical problems of distance and targets, and the entire success of his operations depends upon the extreme accuracy of those calculations. Accuracy certainly is affected by fatigue. If there is continuous vibration of the navigator's table, the instrument panel, the gun mountings, it will result in visual and general fatigue. Again, right away the medical officer is called in, at least medical experiments are required, in the actual construction of an airplane.

The medical problems which center about gun turrets have not even yet been successfully solved in a complete way. How large should a gun turret be? The gun turret is useless unless an average young adult man can efficiently use the guns in the turret. He must wear adequate clothing and have oxygen and intercommunication equipment, and he must have an even chance of getting out of the turret in a hurry in case abandonment of aircraft is necessary.

Clothing a Problem.

One of the most intricate problems which the aviation physician has had to solve is that of the aviator's clothing. The heat regulation of the body can compensate under ordinary circumstances for changes in environmental temperatures. But when you postulate changes in temperature and altitude made in a few minutes, the normal adjustments of the body entirely fail unless artificially helped.

And consider that in tropical climates the temperature inside an airplane which has been sitting on the ground may be 120 degrees Fahrenheit to 140 degrees Fahrenheit, and that the aviator must enter that temperature in clothes that in a few minutes will protect him from the extreme cold of high altitudes, and you will see you have a problem that was never dreamt of in the philosophy of the humdrum, stay-at-home classical hygienist of the days of peace.

Aviation medicine requires under any conditions very special training. Twenty thousand physicians alone, it is estimated, will be needed for the American Air Corps.

Calvin A. Byers, author of "A Farmer's Diary," is recovering after a recent operation, but will be unable to write his column for a few days. He will appreciate receiving a letter or postal card from you. Address, Bellville, Ohio.

ARMY ENLISTS BIG FORCE OF GLIDER PILOTS

Wants Able-Bodied Men From 18 to 36 To Handle Motorless Craft.

DAYTON — (AP) — The U. S. Army Air force wants all the "infantry pilots" it can muster.

Glider pilots to you—and, said officers at Wright field today, there's a job open to every able-bodied boy or man between the ages of 18 to 36, with or without previous flight training.

In conjunction with the army, the Civilian Pilots training program recently inaugurated an eight-weeks course of instruction: 35 hours of air time and 240 hours of ground school. After that, the army takes over and, boning hard on supplemental work, the successful candidate begins a highly concentrated course in military glider operation.

It isn't "kid-stuff," this business of flying a troop-or-materiel-carrying air trailer. Veterans say there's only vague similarity between the sport of "sail-planing" or "soaring" and the handling of even a small troop glider.

For one thing, those carrying more than one or two men don't soar as do the one-man sport models. The load is too heavy. It's strictly a job of gliding or diving down to make a landing in a predetermined area of limited dimensions. The pilot doesn't get a second chance if he errs in judgment.

For that matter, the writer, who has been flying airplanes of "grasshopper" classification for a year, found little similarity between these and a two-place air trailer in which he was privileged by the army to make a 30-minute hop between two Ohio air bases.

Controls of the motorless craft appeared much more sensitive and certainly, it required closest concentration to resist an occasional impulse to climb, either independently of the tow-plane or after the glider was cast loose.

Actually, piloting a heavier glider is more akin to flying a transport airplane according to veterans in the business.

The glider pilot's work is tied up more with ground force operation than with the air service, despite his long training in flight and such subjects as meterology, navigation and aerodynamics. He'll be a sort of aerial chauffeur to squads of infantry, machine gun crews—joining forces with them once he has landed his craft.

He'll have to be just as tough and able to care for himself as they are—and for that reason, a considerable portion of his preparatory work will be in calisthenics and the arts of self defense.

Soldier's Query Leads to Plenty Of Difficulties

CAMP EDWARDS, Mass.—(U P) —A pair of medical detachment sergeants had just completed a long day of answering thousands of questions posed by new recruits.

While they were returning to their barracks they were approached by a buck private seeking a three-day pass. "No," they both chorused, "and the next guy that asks us—" At that moment another rookie asked for a three-day pass. The two top-kicks grabbed him and tossed him into an excavation.

Unfortunately, the rookie landed on a water main which burst under his weight. The barrack went without water for the rest of the night.

MAJOR HAS FOUR SONS IN ARMY AND ONE HAS SERVED 7 YEARS

(By International News Service)

NORTHAMPTON, Mass. — "Chips off the old block" are the four sons of Major Leon J. Lavallee, officer in the 1114th C. A. S. U. provisional battalion at Camp Edwards.

Three of the boys are regular army personnel — stationed thousnds of miles apart. A fourth is about to enter military life.

To begin at the end, son number three is drawing the envy of the other brothers. Though he is lowest among them in rank — a first class private — Edward Lewis has come under fire of Jap planes as a member of the 65th Coast artillery. Of his two years in the army, more than half has been spent in Hawaii.

Master Sergeant Leon Lavallee has seen eight years of service in his short 27 years of life. At present he is with a maintenance battalion of an armored division at Camp Polk, La.

Staff Sergeant Raymond Francis Lavallee has an even better record, having seen seven years of service at the age of 24. He is a member of Battery B, 28th Coast artillery in Boston.

But son Robert W. may bound family tradition when he enters the service and takes to the sea. Right now, it's a question of making up his mind as to just what branch he will enter when he gives up his position with a New Haven, Conn., firm.

But papa will not attempt to interfere. He'll let the boy decide for himself.

Major Lavallee himself has seen service in many corners of the globe since his enlistment in June of 1910, at which time he joined Company I of the old Massachusetts Volunteer militia. He went to the Mexican border with the Second Massachusetts infantry as first sergeant of his company in 1915.

He found himself a first sergeant at the outbreak of the first World war and went to France, where he saw action. After 11 months, he returned to this country and was at Camp Sheridan, Alabama, when the war ended. He was discharged in 1919.

POSTMAN GIVES WALKING TIPS

Maintain a steady gait, but not too fast, and wear shoes that fit, the mailman advocated.

Waggoner walks an estimated 5,000 miles per year on his job. His daily average is 15¾ miles, sometimes through slush, rain, or sub-zero cold. He wears out at least two pairs of shoes each year.

SOYBEAN CROP JAMS PLANTS

Ohio Processors Wonder How They'll Handle Record Production.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Ohio is harvesting a record soybean crop of 25,347,000 bushels now, but processing plants in the state have only an estimated annual capacity to crush 12,900,000 bushels of beans, B. A. Wallace, Ohio State university farm marketing specialist, said recently.

Indiana growers are faced with greater difficulties than confront those in Ohio, he reported. The Hoosier state is producing about 29,400,000 bushels of soybeans this year and its processing plants have a capacity of 12,900,000 bushels annually. Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and Iowa produce three-fourths of the nation's soybean crop.

Restrictions on construction have helped to prevent building more processing plants during a year when the production of soybeans have almost doubled.

Soybean oil is especially important since the war has closed routes to supplies of other oils in tropical countries and also has stopped the export of soybeans from Manchuria to England and the United States.

MARRIAGE ANNOUNCED AT TEA ON SUNDAY

Guests At Party In Mansfield-Leland Hotel Club Room Learn That Virginia Fox Is Bride of Albert Vincent Weiland.

AT AN announcement tea given in the club room of the Mansfield-Leland hotel from 3 to 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon, 35 guests learned of the marriage of Miss Virginia Faye Fox and Pvt. Albert Vincent Weiland, which was solemnized on Oct. 15. The parsonage of St. Mary's Cathedral in Trenton, N. J., was the scene of the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Hugh P. Hasson at 9:45 p. m.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Lavida F. Fox, 336 West Fifth street, and the late Charles A. Fox. The bridegroom is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth Weiland, 356 Lexington avenue, and the late H. N. Weiland, Hostesses for the tea were the bride's mother and sister, Mrs. John L. Pfahler, jr., of Kilbourne.

Color scheme for the announcement party was red, white and blue. Red carnations and white pompons, supplemented by red and blue dyed maple leaves, formed the centerpiece. Mrs. Peter Weidner of Loudonville presided at the table. Out of town guests were Miss Wilda Moore of Wooster, Miss Mary Shafer of Cleveland, Miss Roselyne Zychick of Cleveland and Mrs. Weidner. The announcements were concealed in the napkins. Mrs. Weiland was presented with a corsage of pink carnations and roses.

For her wedding, the former Miss Fox wore a two-piece street length dress of wine colored velvet with square neckline and basque waist. She had matching accessories and a corsage of pink, "Happy Days" roses. The couple was unattended.

Mrs. Weiland is a graduate of Mansfield Senior high school and the Mansfield Commercial Institure. For the past five years she has been bookkeeper for the Weidner Motor Sales. She will continue to reside at the West Fifth street address. The bridegroom is a graduate of St. Peter's parochial high school and is now in the anti-aircraft division of the Coast Artillery, stationed at Fort Dix, N. J.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was attired in a teal blue street length dress with which she had black accessories. Her corsage was of orchids. Mrs. Albert Miller, sister of the bridegroom, was matron of honor. She wore a light tan suit with brown accessories and a corsage of yellow roses. Mr. Miller served as best man for his brother-in-law.

Mrs. Beamer's dress was soldier blue and her accessories were black. A blue print frock and black accessories were worn by Mrs. Fritz. Each mother had a corsage of white carnations.

Both Corporal and Mrs. Fritz are graduates of Mansfield Senior high school. Mrs. Fritz is employed in the office of the National Biscuit company. Her husband is in the division headquarters of the airborne division at Fort Bragg, N. C.

Couple Observes 50th Anniversary With Open House

Many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Victor L. Lime called at the home of the couple's daughter, Mrs. Vinton Childs, 568 Garfield place, Sunday afternoon to extend congratulations on the Limes' golden wedding anniversary. Mrs. Ethel Hawley, another daughter, assisted Mrs. Childs with the arrangements.

A family dinner was served at the Alcove in Mt. Vernon at noon with the children and four grandchildren of the couple in attendance. At the open house in the afternoon the table was decorated with a tiered wedding cake topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom, tall white tapers in a pair of three-branch candelabra, and a bouquet of gold and white chrysanthemums. There were many lovely bouquets of flowers which were received from friends. Mr. and Mrs. Lime also were the recipients of numerous gifts

The former Jennie E. May and Mr. Lime were united in marriage on Nov. 1, 1892, at the First Lutheran church. Rev. Wiles performed the ceremony. Both have always lived in or near Mansfield.

Mansfield Music Study Club Has Meeting Sunday

When the Mansfield Music Study club met Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock in St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church, an interesting program was presented with Miss Hester Robinson as chairman, Mrs. K. E. Buhr, commentator, Miss Thelma Reed, pianist, Mrs. W. J. Hazeltine and John Grabler, vocalists, and Mrs. Joy Herbert, harpist.

During the business meeting before the program, Mrs. H. L. Gilbert read a letter from the War Chest drive and the members voted to contribute in the name of the club. The topic of the meeting, "Glance at the Evolution of Music" was covered by the paper which was prepared and read by Mrs. Buhr. As illustrations of the more modern music, Miss Reed played "Prelude No. 3" by George Gershwin and "Barcarolle" by Charles Griffith. Mrs. Hazelton, accompanied by Mrs. A. J. Twitchell at the piano, sang "Mary Alone" by David Guion, and "Wings of Night" by Winter Watts. Mrs. Herbert presented Andre Kostelanetz' "Lake Louise," "Chanson Dans La Nuit" by Salzedo and Debussy's En Bateau. John Grabler, accompanied by Mrs. Marie Porterfield at the piano, sang Oley Speaks' "Back Again in Alden" and "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition" by Loesser. All p resent joined in singing the chorus of the latter number.

The meeting was closed with singing of the national anthem, "The Star Spangled Banner." Date of the next meeting is Sunday, Dec. 6.

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Tuesday, November 3.

Excellent opportunities for progress and the launching of new and productive programs is found in this day's lunar and mutual aspects of major planets. It should be a propitious time for attacking ambitious projects with heightened vigor, initiative and determination, since many phases of creative ability are under high stimuli for reaching desired objectives. Many forms of cooperation and approbation are assured but these should not be frustrated by indulgence in impetuous, erratic or turbulent conduct. Calm and poise are enjoined.

If It Is Your Birthday.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of unusual achievements in important lines of constructive effort, with major projects and fresh and bold programs gaining the assistance of elders, friends and those in influential positions. It is a time for attacking ambitious propositions with initiative, resolution and decision and not erratic, tempestuous or impulsive moods. Well-organized plans carried through with poise and deliberation should advance all goals and cherished ideals, despite minor delays.

A child born on this day may be endowed with excellent constructive abilities which will be demonstrated on practical lines and skills. In spite of erratic or emotional moods it should enjoy personal prestige and romance.

PLYMOUTH GIRL WEDS MANSFIELD SOLDIER

Miss Evelyn Steele, Pfc. Charles Caugherty, Jr., Exchange Vows Sunday In Shelby Church; Dinner, Reception Held.

OPEN church was observed for the wedding of Miss Evelyn Lucille Steele, daughter of Mrs. Ethel Grace Steele of Plymouth, and Pfc. Charles Edward Caugherty, jr., of Camp Perry, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Caugherty, Park avenue west road. The ceremony took place in the United Brethren church in Shelby at 6 o'clock Sunday evening. Rev. J. C. Searle performed the single ring service.

Attendants were Mrs. J. H. Russell, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Betty Briggs of Plymouth, and William Russell Caugherty, brother of the bridegroom. Guests were ushered to their places in the church by John R. Caugherty and Russell H. Steele, brothers of the bride and bridegroom.

Nuptial music by the church organist included "I Love You Truly," by Carrie Jacobs Bond, and the "Lohengrin" wedding march by Wagner. The altar was attractively decorated with crysanthemums in pastel shades.

The bride's street length dress was in the Salute Blue shade and her accessories were brown. She had a corsage of chrysanthemums and roses. Mrs. Russell was attired in a rust colored frock and Miss Briggs wore a dark blue dress. For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Steele chose a navy blue frock and Mrs. Caugherty's dress was in the same shade. The attendants and mothers had shoulder corsages of chrysanthemums and roses.

After the ceremony dinner was served at the Steele home in Plymouth. Fifty guests were present. A reception and open house at the home of the bridegroom's parents followed.

Mrs. Caugherty was graduated from Plymouth high school and is employed by the Autocall company in Shelby. A graduate of Ontario high school, the Midwestern Automotive school in Bloomington, Ill., and of the Enlisted Division of Ordnance school in Detroit, Mich., the bridegroom is a private first class in the army and is stationed at Camp Perry.

Guests were present from Canton, Akron, Cuyahoga Falls, Willard, Shelby and Mansfield.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

Most fair players slavishly lead their partner's suits, when opening the defense of a hand, unless they have some very positive combination of their own, such as honors in sequence, or a trump lead because the contractor seems to have a cross-ruffing proposition, since each of the opponents bid a side suit in addition to the eventual trump.

But there are other times when evading the suit named across the table can pay. One comes when you have the ace-queen of it and do not feel sure he has one particular card, the king.

	♠ K 9 8 5 ♥ A K J 5 2 ♦ 10 4 ♣ Q 5
♠ Q 10 6 3 ♥ 7 6 4 ♦ A Q ♣ J 10 6 4	N W E S	♠ 2 ♥ 10 8 ♦ J 8 7 6 3 ♣ A K 8 7
	♠ A J 7 4 ♥ Q 9 3 ♦ K 9 5 ♣ 9 3 2

(Dealer: East. North-South vulnerable.)

East	South	West	North
Pass	Pass	Pass	1 ♥
2 ♠	2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠

Four very strong competitive players were engaged in the rubber game at which a run-of-the-mill devotee was learning a few lessons by kabitzing the West man on this deal. As he reported later, his mind was fully made up to see West lead the diamond A, the card prescribed in nearly all books when opening your partner's suit. West did not do it, however. Instead, he chose the club 4.

What a funny thing to lead? At least, that is what the kibitzer thought. He would have led the diamond A and followed with the Q, no matter what card his partner played on the first trick, as he would then be in position to ruff the third round.

If you will follow out the legical play, however, you will see that this time the club lead beat the contract, giving the refenders two tricks in diamonds, two in clubs and one in spades, whereas a diamond lead would have set up the K and enabled South to take all but four tricks. Ultimately that would have meant the rubber, as the next deal produced a certain part-score for North and South. As it was, East and West on the ensuing two deals after the part-score made games and won the rubber.

	♠ K 7 6 2 ♥ 8 7 4 ♦ Q J 6 ♣ K 8 3
♠ A 8 ♥ A 10 2 ♦ A 5 ♣ A J 10 6	N W E S	♠ 4 ♥ 9 6 5 3 ♦ 10 9 7 4 ♣ 3 2
	♠ Q J 10 9 5 3 ♥ K Q J ♦ K 8 ♣ Q 7

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

What basic principle of bridge play is strikingly illustrated by South's futile effort to make 4-Spades on this deal against West's four aces?

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

"Wait a minute!" Philip Veritzen said with upraised hand, as Mr. Milner, manager of Hotel Lansfield, went toward the telephone.

"Order the grill and the kitchen closed at once," the owner of the Lansfield directed, "and have every employe of either come to the apartment adjoining this. But first order your house detectives to see to it that no one gets away."

"You don't mean, Mr. Veritzen, that you are going to put this in the hands of the police?" the manager expostulated excitedly. "Why, it will ruin the hotel!"

"And also you," his employer added coldly. "Why should I not call in the police? My only son and his wife have been almost killed in my own hotel, under the management of a man on whom I thought I could depend. And you ask me not to investigate the matter?"

"On the contrary," Mr. Milner said sturdily, "I want the fullest investigation. I cannot rest until I have gotten to the bottom of this mystery. I shall show no mercy in grilling the employes but until you are sure that we cannot find out the truth ourselves, I beg you, for the sake of the hotel and for the sake of your son and daughter-in-law, that you do not call in the police."

I caught my breath. What was he about to insinuate?

Philip Veritzen rose abruptly from his chair, and I saw Dicky move adroitly to his side.

"What are you trying to insinuate, Milner?" he thundered. "By the eternal, if—"

"Mr. Veritzen!" Milner's voice held just the right note of horror. "I am insinuating nothing. We all know here that some way, somehow, a drug was given to them without their knowledge.

"But don't you know the police? They will at once say 'suicide pact,' or something of that sort."

To Unmask Milner.

It was Miller's trick for an instant, after he played that high card. All of us except Philip Veritzen knew that my father would not permit calling in the police in this matter, so vital to unmasking Milner as agent of a subversive gang.

My father came to the rescue of Veritzen with an assumption of authority I knew the autocratic theatrical magnate would have brooked from no other man in the world. But ever since that memorable night when my father and his men saved Philip Veritzen's fortune, and the lives of his son, his own wife, the exiled queen of Transvania and her daughter, Philip Veritzen had shown there was no limit to his gratitude.

"This is all beside the question," by father said. "You know, Philip, that the ordinary police will have no hand here, so there will be no chance of a scandal. My own men will handle this."

I was watching Milner closely and for a fleeting instant saw something like panic in his eyes. But his voice was cool and suave as always when he replied to my father.

I think you are right, Mr. Spencer. This has no earmarks of an ordinary crime for robbery. Yet that means we have a spy of some sort in our organization, and that is simply unthinkable."

"Perhaps unthinkable, but not improbable," my father said dryly.

Mr. Milner bowed.

"Yes, that is true," he said, and Philip Veritzen struck in impatiently.

"Well why this delay? Are you going to give those orders for closing the grill room and kitchen, and rounding up the employes, or must I telephone them myself?"

My father saved Milner the necessity of answering immediately.

"Those orders must not be telephoned," he said firmly. "They must be given in person."
